FOREWORD

The authenticity of a history of this nature depends largely upon the character of its author, and for that reason, I believe that a brief personal history and an explanation of my sources of information, is not out of place. Whatever egotism moves me in this matter ought to be fully suppressed by the thought that at eighty I am nearing the end, and a few years hence the reader will not stop to consider which one of the Johns I might have been.

I was born in Howard County, Missouri, in 1850, and in 1853 moved twenty-five miles east to a farm adjoining what is now the town of Clark, Randolph County, Missouri. This country was at that time sparsely settled. Our home was in "Long Arm," a stretch of prairie sixty miles long and from two to six miles wide. Here deer were plentiful, wolves were frequently seen and heard, and many a squirrel wandered into our orchard from the timber not far away; and while the dogs held him at bay, Pa's trusty rifle brought him down and furnished a change from our cornbread, pork and hominy diet. Don't misunderstand me; all these articles were mighty fine eating, and I often long for the "crackling" bread or the good old "pone" and the appetite of the long ago.

By the fall of the year, the blue-stem prairie grass had become so rank in many places on this prairie of thousands of acres of outlying lands that the grass would hide a man on horseback fifty yards away. Frequently when old Sookey or old Brindle would be missing from the herd at evening milking time, I would have to mount Old Gray, the family "nag," and trail the cattle paths and the distant tinkling cow bells to see if the recreant one were not following a strange crowd. Such, however, were cases of wilful misconduct for every cow knew absolutely her own paths and her own bell.

Here I went to school, held in a log schoolhouse some three miles away. I attended three or four months each year, except for two or three weeks out, now and then, when it was necessary for me to stay at home to help Pa gather corn, or haul wood for winter fires. Remember too—in those days we had real winters, deep snows often covering the ground for two months at a time. My schooling was also interrupted by the Civil War. We lived in the borderland where strife, killings, and battles, kept us in terror night and day.

At the age of nineteen, with a very limited education, I began to prepare myself for teaching. This I did by teaching, and going to school alternately. At the age of twenty-five I married a farmer girl, and after that, we spent most of our lives on a farm, generally near some town.

I taught thirty-three years, owned and edited two newspapers, and helped run another in which I had half interest. While teaching I was several times County School Commissioner of Audrain County where I lived for thirty years. I have held the principal offices in the local lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen and others. I kept a general store at Keyes, California, several years, and was Express Agent and Postmaster there at the same time. We reared a family of one son and three daughters, all of whom married happily and reared families, and only one of them lives on a farm.

I learned to read when quite young, and before I was twelve years old I had read "Weems' Life of Washington", and "Frost's History of the United States" in three volumes; so, when as a boy, I heard my father and his brothers talk of our ancestors and their connection with the early history of the United States, I was filled with a great desire to see our family record in print.

I knew well my grandfather, John Cross, and he was partly reared by his grandfather William, the emigrant, so it does not seem so very far across when you look at it that way. I was ten years old when grandfather Cross died, and I was present at his death and burial. His funeral was preached by my maternal grandfather, Rev. William Shores, a retired Methodist preacher. Grandfather Cross was a blacksmith and did work for a large section of country around him. He was about five feet, eight inches in height, of stout build, red complexioned and roly-poly.

Somewhere along in the forties, Grandmother Cross inherited two negro women from the estate of her uncle, Thomas Blythe, in North Carolina. These two women and their families thereafter became helpers on the farm. You can imagine however, which side of the ledger they helped, when I tell you that none of their progeny were grown at the time of the Civil War. The youngsters hardly knew what it was to be "bossed," except by their own mothers who frequently cuffed them without mercy—events which I often witnessed.

These two women, one black, one yellow, were named Amanda and Emily. When I arrived on this mundane sphere, Mandy, the black one—very black—was sent to help me hold on, by furnishing me the staff of life. This she continued to do, more or less, for several months. She may have saved my life, nevertheless, I considered it very bad taste, when as I grew older, she never ceased reminding me of the part she had played in the affair mentioned, and she even threatened to repeat the process on me at a time when I felt myself far above the needs of child treatment. I was greatly humiliated thereby and, much to her amusement, always grew furious; but she never spared me.

When William Cross, Jr., died on "Old Christmas Day," January, 1848, he had lived for several years, with his family consisting of wife and one or more unmarried daughters, in a small house on the farm of his son, John, in Howard County, Mo. At that time John's sons—William Blythe (my father) was twenty-eight years old, George twenty-five, Jack twenty, Henry fourteen. None of these brothers were married, and as farmers, had spent their lives on the home farm or nearby, and had splendid opportunities to learn family traditions from their grandfather, and from their father, who was partly reared in the home of his grandfather, William Cross, the emigrant.

In 1856, Uncle George Cross settled near us at Clark and followed his trade of blacksmithing, living on his farm. When Clark, several years later, became a village, he sold his farm and located there where he died in 1878. Uncle Jack Cross settled in Howard County but he made frequent visits to his brothers at Clark, twenty-five miles away. Father and Uncle George were together much, and I was with them quite a good deal. Father helped Uncle George build houses and barns and helped him with his crops; Uncle George did father's blacksmith work, and frequently helped us with the farm work. I was the oldest child of father's family, so I was often sent to help Uncle George drop the corn, blow the bellows, plow, and plant. When Uncle Jack came to see us, he and father would sit up and talk until midnight. I was always a delighted listener and asked many questions. In this way I gleaned many facts of family history which I write, and which I firmly believe are true.

Acknowledgments for Assistance.

In compiling this history and genealogy, I have been greatly assisted by my daughter, Mary and her husband, Mr. Redmond Selecman Cole, of Tulsa, Okla. They have visited the Crosses in Illinois and the graveyards there; have three times visited in Virginia, looking over gravevards and spending days searching old records in courthouses at Fincastle, Abingdon and Staunton; have corresponded extensively in getting information from the various families; have visited Richmond, Ky., and the graveyards near there; have employed genealogists to search the records at Washington City, Richmond, Ky., Richmond, Va., and other places. To Mr. Cole is due much credit for the plan and arrangement of this work and to Mrs. Cole, for doing the bulk of the work of putting it together.

I am indebted to James Harvey Cross and David Ellis (both deceased), of Neoga, Ill., for valuable help in locating members of the George Cross family; and to Thomas Toleman Cross of Bevier, Mo., for a mass of information relating to the Macon County Crosses.

I wish to acknowledge much help from "The Gentry Family in America" by the late Richard Gentry of Kansas City, Mo., and "History and Genealogies" by the late William Harris Miller, Richmond, Ky., in tracing the genealogies of the families of Harris, Gentry and Martin. I am under great obligation to Capt. James Blythe Anderson, of Lexington, Ky., himself a genealogist and an author of no mean repute, for valuable information, sound advice, and kindly sympathy. Through Joseph C. Dill of Buchanan, Va., we have lately gotten in touch with some of the members of the family of John Cross, of Botetourt Co., Va. We thank him and L. L. Cross, of Long Beach, Calif. and Otto Scott, of Mexico, Ind., for helping us trace that family. We have left out no family that we could locate with a reasonable effort. We have sent out scores of letters that we have never heard from.

I am individually responsible for the Harris-Martin, Cain-Robertson, Gentry-Blythe, histories and genealogies, but in the Conner genealogy, the data has been gathered by Dr. Sarah McLonie Conner, of Pasadena, Calif., to whom much credit is due to her unflagging interest and sustained efforts in accomplishing her work. I acknowledge valuable contributions from James H. Robertson, Jr., of Flagstaff, Ariz.

Especially do we owe much to my brother, James Thomas Cross, lumberman of Moberly, Mo., for assuming the financial burden of the publication of this work. He makes this donation as a generous contribution to the present, and coming generations of the Cross family, with the prospect of small remuneration and no hopes of any future emolument arising from his act. His family are all gone, and he has passed his three score and ten years, yet his philanthropies for which he is well noted, reach out in good deeds.

For the correctness of the genealogy of any family we depend upon the member of the family who has furnished such information. There will be no copyright on this work, so will not some enterprising member of the family, add to and improve this, and publish a more complete history of the Cross and related families? Blank pages have been added for additional data of births, deaths and marriages as they occur.

CHAPTER I

THE CROSS ANCESTRY

A story repeated to me from earliest recollection is that our Cross ancestor was William Cross, born in England in 1733, a soldier in General Braddock's army that was sent over from England in 1755 to take part in the French and Indian War; that at Braddock's Defeat July 9th of that year, he received a wound from a bullet that lodged in his shoulder; and that some forty years later this wound developed into a trouble that killed him; that he lived in Botetourt County, Virginia, and died there about 1795; that he reared a family of two sons and three daughters; that his sons were named John and William; that John lived in Botetourt County and reared there a family of two sons and a "big family of girls;" and that one of his sons was named Lewis, and that Lewis was a bachelor.

Now for the last part of this story, we have documentary facts, established by minutes of the proceedings of the Botetourt County Court for thirty years, wills, marriage records, deeds to land and property allotments in division of estates, and these show:—

That a William Cross lived on a farm in Botetourt County which was cut out of Augusta County in 1770; that he reared a family there, and died there in 1798; that he had two sons and three daughters, and his sons were named John and William; that John lived near his father and reared a family there of two sons and nine daughters; that one of his sons was named Lewis and that Lewis married April 16, 1835 when he was about forty years of age.

The traditional story coincides with established facts in all essential points, except a slight variation in the date of William's death, and the numbers of daughters John had, so there can be no doubt that the William Cross named in each, is one and the same. Assuming that the traditional story is fully authenticated, the story of the Cross family is based thereon.

After General Braddock's defeat and death in 1755, his army under the command of General Dunbar, who was not in the battle but in charge of the reserves some twenty miles in the rear, fell back to Fort Cumberland, Maryland. After resting there a few days, he left part of his stores with the Maryland and Virginia troops and moved with the Regulars to Philadelphia, later going to New York and Albany. (See letter Penn. Hist. Soc.)

Much correspondence with the War Departments of England and America discloses the fact that no list of the private soldiers in Braddock's army, the 44th and 48th Infantry have been preserved. Therefore, it is impossible to secure documentary proof of the service of William Cross in Braddock's army in the French and Indian War. Record of later services, however, have been found in the files of the Virginia Land Office.

When General Dunbar left Fort Cumberland he necessarily had to leave the wounded there with the Maryland and Virginia troops. They remained there a month or two longer, then returned to Virginia and were disbanded there.

Within the following year, William Cross, recovered from his wound, undoubtedly fell in with some of the numerous companies going to the western border of Virginia for cheap lands, and took up land on the James River in territory that afterwards became a part of Botetourt County. Two and a half years after Braddock's defeat, General Forbes was commissioned to raise an army to march against the French and Indians and capture Fort Duquesne, or Fort Pitt, as it was afterwards called. The city of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, now occupies the site of Fort Pitt, and it was near this place that Braddock's Army was cut to pieces. General Forbes raised about 7000 men for this expedition which was partially successful, and William Cross served in it as a volunteer in the Old First Virginia Regiment. This regiment was commanded by Col. Washington (afterwards General Washington) who resigned after the campaign was over to accept a place in the House of Burgesses. He was succeeded by Col. William Byrd, and the regiment was used in border service. This regiment continued in service until after the Cherokee expedition in 1760. In a final drive against the Cherokees Col. Byrd was ordered to form a junction with Col. Waddell in command of the North Carolina troops, at a certain place on the border, but he consumed so much time in building bridges and cutting roads through the heavy forests, that he failed to reach the place of rendezvous in time to be of service. Under severe criticism for this, Col. Byrd resigned and was replaced by Col. Adam Stephen who shortly afterwards took the Virginians back to their homes. The Cherokees had been subjugated by Lieut. Col. Grant who had marched into their country, defeated them everywhere, burned their villages, and destroyed their crops. Col. Byrd was not much of a soldier, but he was a man of great influence in the councils of his state, Virginia, and a big farmer, owning at one time 105,000 acres of land and several hundred slaves.

William Cross applied for and obtained a land warrant (No. 883) covering this service in the "Old First Virginia" regiment. He assigned this land warrant to his neighbor, Thomas Rowland, who was at that time one of the justices of the court of Botetourt County. A most intensive search of the old records of Botetourt County from the time of its organization in 1770, fails to show the name of any other Cross than the one William Cross and his family up to 1797, after which time the Cross name appears frequently in deeds and marriage records. This fact alone fully substantiates the claim that this was our William Cross, for we know that our William lived in Botetourt County during its early history, and that he reared a family there, and died there.

As to the further service of William Cross, we have the oft-repeated story, that, during the Revolutionary War, he and his son William, then fifteen years old, as blacksmiths, were in a fort protecting the frontier, and that at one time the fort was so closely besieged by Indians, that they were called outside the fort and fought the Indians for three hours, driving them away, and that this was the only battle that William, Jr., was ever in. As well as I can place this event, it was in 1781. As a part of their duties in the fort they had to provide iron slugs for the only cannon they possessed, to shoot at the Indians. This cannon was more effective as a noisemaker than as a deadly weapon.

I have heard the story always, that William Cross, Sr., was in the Revolutionary War, but I am sure there is no documentary evidence to support the claim. To save some future historian trouble I will mention that "Summers' Annals" lists the name of a William Cross as a Revolutionary soldier from Botetourt County, but when the source of information was traced, it was found he was from Sussex County.

When the British burned the Capitol at Washington in 1814, most of the Government Military records were destroyed, and many records of the state of Virginia were destroyed, when Richmond was burned during the Civil War; so by these destructive acts many well supported traditional facts concerning the people and the events of early Virginia history will go down in oblivion.

Not knowing the parish or county in England from which our ancestor came, it has been impossible to trace the family to its original home. From a communication from England we learn:

"Cross is a fairly common name in Lancashire and Cheshire. It would be easier for me to trace them through the Parish Registers, Wills, Chancery Proceedings, etc., if you wish the enquiry extended. The tracing of your family pedigree would take some time, however, and would cost at least twenty pounds. And I could not guarantee that it would be successful, of course."

From such letters it was learned that it was too costly and too uncertain to attempt to find our family in England. So we present all we have found from tradition and the early Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri records.

J. N. C.

CHAPTER II

CROSS CHARACTERISTICS

William Cross, Jr., was a man of heavy build weighing over two hundred pounds, a blacksmith, and a man strongly imbued with ideas of sport and adventure. These qualities of mind and body were largely in evidence in the families of his children. His sons, George and John, were stoutly built, red complexioned, and ready to fight at the drop of a hat. They took a prominent part in the sports of their time. John was as active as a cat and this made him hard to beat in the games of his day. This quality was noticeable in most of his children and their families. John's son, Jack, of light build, delighted to match his prowess with the heavyweights of his time.

William Cross Jr.'s first wife was the daughter of George and Peggy McCown (also spelled McGown and McGowan). George was born in Scotland and Peggy in Ireland. They married in England, emigrated to America, settled in Tennessee, later went to Kentucky, and then to Illinois. Their daughter, Sarah, was robust and red headed, and a woman of very determined character. She and her mother, Peggy, were both buried in the Old Baptist Cemetery six miles from Neoga, Illinois, as sandstone markers yet indicate.

The older generations of our family all liked their "licker." The men took theirs straight and the women took theirs in mint juleps, blackberry wines and egg nogs. In pioneer days it was thought quite the proper think to keep a bottle or jug handy on the sideboard. A visitor would consider himself snubbed if the toddy were not passed around before breakfast. This custom was almost universal even in religious homes. Everybody kept whiskey; if not for use as a beverage, it was kept as a medicine for emergencies, such as sudden attacks of Cholera Morbus, pneumonia, cramps, and malaria, and for snake bites which in this new country were a real and ever present menace. The drinks were the pure goods and were always in evidence at happy gatherings, log rollings, corn shuckings, house raisings, etc. Several of the Crosses of the earlier generations were not church members, though most of the later ones were. The wives of George and John were of families prominent in the affairs of the country and both were members of the Primitive or Old Baptist Church.

Like all pioneers our progenitors were mostly farmers and blacksmiths. Later there were among them preachers, teachers, lawyers, editors, carpenters, contractors, engineers and business men. Some have traveled extensively and most of them have taken a prominent part in the civic affairs of their communities. Many of them did not believe in slavery but were ardent States Rights men, so when the Civil War came on, some wore the Blue and some the Gray. Many of the younger generation served as soldiers in the World War.

CHAPTER III

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE FROM VIRGINIA RECORDS

Records of William Cross.

The years brought changes in the habitat of the Crosses as the pioneer spirit moved them to seek homes farther and farther west. Many of the stories will remain unauthenticated because the records cannot be located. Botetourt County, Virginia, however, still contains many of its old records and frequently the Crosses are mentioned among these. The following references culled from land office records at Richmond, from Will and Deed Books of Botetourt County and from an abstract of the records of Botetourt County published in Summers' "Annals of Southwest Virginia" refer to William Cross, Sr., the first of the family of whom we have record.

1758, Dec. 15, William Cross granted 395 acres "around the county of Lunenberg." L. O. Book 33, p. 525.

CHAPTER IV

FIRST GENERATION

1. WILLIAM CROSS,[1] the first known ancestor. From available records, we know that the first of the Cross ancestors was William Cross, Sr., who we know from legend and fact, was born in 1733 and died in Botetourt County, Virginia, in 1798, leaving a wife, Elizabeth, and at least five children. Two of his daughters married, one a man named Warren, and one a man named Woods, and settled in Linn County, Missouri. Examination of the Linn County records show many families of these names but none could be found who are known to be descendants of these women.

Children (Cross)—all born in Virginia:

i. Mary.
2. ii. John, b. about 1761; m. Polly Mays.
iii. Jane, m. John Elliott Oct. 6, 1785. Nothing further known.
3. iv. William, Jr., b. Aug. 22, 1766; m (1) Sarah McCown, (2) Mary Eliza Rice.
v. Elizabeth.

SECOND GENERATION.

2. JOHN CROSS,[2] (William[1]), b. about 1761 in Botetourt Co., Va. For purposes of convenience solely, we have given the story of his family in Part IV, "John Cross of Virginia and his Descendants," where a list of his children and descendants, will be found.

3. WILLIAM CROSS,[2] (William[1]), b. in Augusta Co., Va., Aug. 22, 1766, d. in Mo., Jan. 1848; m. in Tenn. about 1791 Sarah McCown. They moved to Madison Co., Ky., where two children were born, John and George. They separated there about 1794 and Sarah took George and went to her parents in Tenn., while William took John and returned to his ancestral home in Va. On July 14, 1795, he was married a second time to Mary Eliza Rice, daughter of John Rice, by whom he reared a large family. The records of Botetourt Co., Va., show that in 1799, John Hanson Vinson was bound to "William Cross, blacksmith." William remained in Botetourt County until about 1807 when he and family returned to Madison County, Ky., taking with him, his son John, who was then learning the blacksmithing trade. William remained in Madison County until 1828, when, with all his family, he moved to north central Missouri settling on a farm about four miles north of Roanoke, which was later occupied by Charles Shores and Judge Walden. Still later he moved to Howard County, living on the farm of his son, John, about one mile east, and one-half mile south of Armstrong. He died there in 1848 and was buried in the cemetery on that farm. His widow lived with her children until some years later.

Children (Cross)—born in Virginia and Kentucky:

4. i. George, b. Jan. 31, 1792; m. Miss Major Hughes (See Part III, "George Cross of Illinois and His Descendants.")
5. ii. John, b. Dec. 1793; m. Sally Blythe. (Part II, "The Mo. Crosses.")
6. iii. William, b. 1797; m. Rachel ————. (See Part II.)
   iv. Anderson, m. Mary Hardister in Randolph Co., Mo., Dec. 9, 1830. Had three sons; one named "Nip," and another named Brown lived at Huntsville, Mo.
   v. Polly, d. single in Macon Co., Mo.
   vi. Tolbert, m. Lavicy ————. No issue. Records found at Kirksville show that his estate was administered there in 1855. His wife and brother James, were administrators. Among the estate papers appears an instrument showing that Anderson Cross, Brown Lee Cross, James Mathis, Thomas Howard, Sarah Cross, Martha Cross, Benjamin Allen, John Cross, Mary Ann Cross, Eliza Cross, and James Cross purchased his estate from George Cross (half heir), Sarah Ann Chapman (whole heir), Durel Cross, William Dunivant and John Dunivant, the last three being listed as minor heirs. Among the files appear receipts executed by Martha Cross, Lewis Winkler and Hiram Cross.

      Lavicy (Aunt Vicy) was very fleshy, and while living with her nephew, Harrison Cross, near Roanoke, Mo., she fell from a wagon while on the way to church and was killed Feb. 18, 1868.
   vii. Ann, m. Thomas Howard and lived in Randolph Co., and had four children, John, Dillard, Lurinda and Magley. One son was a physician in Chariton Co., Mo. Lurinda married ———— Wiggans and had children: James, John, William, Price, Elza and George. They lived at LaPlata, Mo.
   viii. Patsy, d. single in Macon Co., Mo.
   ix. Scott, while riding sideways on an old workhorse out to the cornfield, in his youth, fell backwards to the ground when the horse shied; and broke his neck.
7. x. James, b. July 19, 1810; m. Martha Palmer.
   xi. Susan.
8. xii. Nancy, b. 1813; m. James Mathis.
   xiii. Sally, a cripple, who lived with her half brother, John, (5) and later with the Mathis family in Macon Co., where she died, and was buried at the Old Chariton Church. Despite her affliction she was always jolly and congenial.
9. xiv. Vachel, b. in Ky.; m. Sarah Ingram Dameron.
   xv. Brown Lee, a blacksmith; m. Rachel Hardister, Nov. 5, 1839. The name of only one child is known, Henry, who lived near Huntsville, Mo. Brown Lee died in Calif.

PART II

The Missouri Crosses

THE MISSOURI CROSSES.

As heretofore noted, William Cross, Jr., son of William, the emigrant, of Botetourt County, Virginia, in 1828 emigrated from Kentucky to Missouri where he lived with his children, except George, who went to Illinois. In this chapter, we trace the descendants of William Cross, Jr.

THIRD GENERATION.

4. GEORGE CROSS,[3] (William,[2] William[1]), b. Jan. 31, 1792; m. Miss Major Hughes. The story of his life and a list of his descendants may be found in Part III of this history.

5. JOHN CROSS,[3] (William,[2] William[1]), b. in Kentucky, Dec., 1793. This is the date left by his son Henry (No. 13) but the tombstone over his grave, shows that he died on the "10th of March, 1861, aged 70." This inscription is probably incorrect.

Early in life he accompanied his father to Virginia, where his father remarried, and later John went with his father and his stepmother back to the county of his birth, Madison Co., Ky. In the meantime he had learned the trade of blacksmith with his father. There on Aug. 28, 1817, he married Sally Blythe, b. Dec. 17, 1797; d. Oct. 16, 1870. For details of her ancestry see Chap. II, Part V, "Gentry-Blythe."

In the year of their marriage, they moved to Howard Co., Mo., settling first near Randolph Springs, and later one and a half miles southeast of Armstrong, Mo. There as farmer-blacksmith, he lived, reared his family, died, and was buried in the family cemetery on his place. His home was always open to relatives or friends. He was never a member of any church, but always gave the preachers a standing invitation to his hospitable home. He was nimble and active in body, and in his younger days was noted as a race horse rider.

Children (Cross)—all born in Howard Co., Mo.:

i. Polly, b. July 10, 1818, d. June 27, 1889; m. John Warden.
10. ii. William Blythe, b. Sept. 18, 1820; m. Mary Jane Shores.
11. iii. George, b. Mar. 4, 1823; m. Martha Ann Butts.
iv. James, b. Oct. 14, 1825, d. Sept. 20, 1843 of typhoid fever.
12. v. John (Jack), b. Oct. 19, 1828; m. Margaret Ann Yancey.
vi. Newton, b. Sept. 6, 1831; d. Sept. 13, 1836.

13. vii. Henry Clay, b. Nov. 25, 1834; m. Susan Taylor.
14. viii. Harrison, b. Apr. 21, 1838; m. Fanny Lamb.
15. ix. Sallie Ann, b. Aug. 6, 1842; m. Frank Kirby.

The following tribute to Mrs. Sally (Blythe) Cross was published Oct., 1870, in a newspaper published in Huntsville, Mo.:

"Died—on Wed., the 18th, at the home of John Warden, near Glasgow, Mo., Mrs. Sally Cross, wife of the late John Cross, aged 73 years.

"Mrs. Cross was born in Madison Co., Ky., and came to Mo., in 1817, and had resided in Howard Co., near Roanoke all this time. She was the mother of nine children—seven sons and two daughters, and was one of the best women that we ever knew—remarkable for her unostentatious piety, her warm heart, and her patient and uniform sympathy for the sick, the needy, and the afflicted. She had a generous and full heart for the stranger, and the wayfarer always found in her a friend, a helper.

"Raised under the generous system of Kentucky hospitality, and having witnessed and shared all the privileges, privations, and struggles of the early settlers in the "Boonslick Country," Mrs. Cross possessed a theory of morals, of hospitality, of labor, and life that is now seldom met with, but which she carried into full practice, and without change, to her grave. She was a noble woman, one fit to assist in founding states, in moulding philosophies and civilizations, in maintaining creeds and that without knowing or talking about it, this she did right well and nobly too, till the day of her death.

"She had resided in Howard Co. over fifty years, and for nearly all that time had been a member of the Mount Pleasant Old School Baptist Association, at old Ararat church.

"She was a step daughter of John Cain, one of the first settlers of Howard Co., and a sister of Major James Blythe of Madison Co., Ky. Peace to her ashes."

6. WILLIAM CROSS,[3] (William,[2] William[1]), b. in Va. about 1797 and d. in Macon Co., Mo., about 1875; m. Rachel ———, b. in Ky., d. in Mo. Both were buried on the farm where they lived six miles southeast of Callao, Mo., now known as the Decker farm.

Children (Cross)—all born in Kentucky:

i. Derrill, Randolph Co., Mo., records say, "Derrill Cross and Elizabeth Mathis m. Apr. 27, 1841." No further record of this family.
16. ii. John R., d. 1862 or 1863; m. Martha Sneed.
iii. Patsy, m. John Dunivant, July 15, 1846. (Macon Co. Records, p. 77). Estate records of Tolbert Cross show names of W. F., and John Dunivant who were probably children of this couple. (See p. 219.)
17. iv. Betsy, b. 1827; d. Jan. 24, 1864; m. Lewis Winkler.
v. Rhoda.
18. vi. William Richard (Dick), b. 1825; m. Mercy Moore.
19. vii. Wright, m. Elizabeth Hinton.

7. JAMES CROSS,[3] (William,[2] William[1]), b. July 19, 1810 in Ky., d. May 26, 1863 in Macon Co., Mo.; m. Nov. 12, 1837, Martha Palmer, b. Nov. 29, 1815, d. May 4, 1896. In Book Y, p. 516, Adair Co. Records, James Harren, Plaintiff, brings suit against Martha Cross,

JOHN CROSS and SALLY (BLYTHE) CROSS

Mary Jane Williams and husband, Milton Williams, Dora Dowdy and William Dowdy, her husband, Newton Williams, James and Fanny A. Williams and Allie Williams (minor), heirs of Newton Williams and Sarah N. Williams, deceased wife. The records show that James Cross owned the land in 1855 and that he died in 1863 in Adair Co. and that Sarah N. died in 1868 leaving five children.

In Book G, p. 296, sheriff's sale Oct. 18, 1856, James Cross and Lenco Cross are plaintiffs. In Book G, p. 184, James Cross and wife Martha buy land, dated Jan. 19, 1858.

Because of his wit, shrewdness and love of jokes Jack Cross or "Uncle Jack" as he was familiarly called in his later years, was known throughout the country. He took pleasure in recounting the tales of the past and as he lived to be eighty-six years old he was a connecting link between the old generations and the present. His stories varied from humorous incidents of life and practical jokes to the more serious stories of the Civil War.

One story told of an aunt who was preparing for her wedding. The preacher had arrived and she was not dressed. Then she saw the groom approaching so she rushed up the steps to the upper room which in those days was a crude affair. In her haste in dressing she tipped a clapboard and was precipitated in the midst of the group below. She lighted running and didn't stop until she came to a corn shock. Here she stayed in hiding until her mother came to her rescue with her clothes.

Among his Civil War stories he told of a group of men in his neighborhood who had to live in the woods in the bushwhacking times and forage for food. The women would bring it to them putting it in different places from time to time. At one time he slipped into his home for a short visit and before he could get away he was surprised by the Northern troops. He ran into the bedroom, slipped off his boots quickly and jumped into bed. By the time the soldiers had come into the house he was in a comatose condition and Aunt Margaret who sat by the bed weeping, expressed gravest fears for his condition. The leader of the squad went out to consult for a few moments and came back evidently intent on some action, but Uncle Jack says he was worse this time, so the troops withdrew. Aunt Margaret laughed and said after they were gone that Uncle Jack ought to be hanged for his tricks.

A later story told about the local option election in Huntsville. Uncle Jack went to town and was at his daughter's house for dinner. As a joke, she pinned a white ribbon representing the W. C. T. U. on the back of Uncle Jack's overcoat as it was lying on the rack. Later when Uncle Jack was downtown with his coat on, some people began to joke him about it, and asked how he happened to be a dry man. As soon as he discovered what was the matter he exclaimed, "Well, I may be dry behind but I am wet in front."

In 1857 when the Old North Mo. R. R. was being built through Mo., Uncle Jack while visiting his brothers, William and George near what is now Clark, went with William and others to see the men building the new road. It was a novel sight to them and Uncle Jack asked many questions of the laborers. One big Irishman who ought to have discovered that Uncle Jack himself was Irish, told him that a little boy like him should not ask questions and that he had better keep out of the way. Uncle Jack's answer was a lick that sent the big man sprawling in a ditch. The other workers cheered Uncle Jack uproariously and chided the other man unmercifully as he slowly regained his position.

May 4, 1853, d. Feb. 29, 1928, daughter of Francis Perry Taylor and Mary Howard Heninger, two of Shelby Co.'s earliest and most prominent citizens, granddaughter of Major Taylor and Elizabeth Ford, also of William Heninger and Susan Kimble. The Taylor family was from Ky. Mr. Cross was a farmer and stockman; he moved to Shelby County in 1850 and lived near Clarence, moving into town in 1903. He and his wife were active members of the Methodist church and both are buried in the Maplewood cemetery at Clarence.

Henry Clay Cross was a remarkable man, living to the age of ninety-two years. He took a great interest in helping collect family history data and the following excerpts from letters indicate some of the facts he had knowledge of.

Under date of Apr. 3, 1899 he wrote:

> "My Great-grandfather William Cross, the emigrant, had two brothers, George and John who came to this country from England."
>
> "My grandfather William Cross, Jr., and great grandfather, William, the emigrant, were in the Revolutionary War. Grandfather was fifteen years old. He told me when I was a small boy, that he was out of the fort only in one fight with the Indians, and that lasted three hours. The two were blacksmiths and were seldom taken out, but were left in the fort to make spikes and slugs to shoot out of the cannon. . . . Once, they were attacked by Indians while in the fort, and the cannon turned loose tearing up the brush, and killing and driving the Indians back. . . .
> "My grandfather was a great fighter. Once, when passing a house on horseback he heard a woman yelling. He got down, hitched his horse and went into the house and found a man whipping his wife. He took the woman's part and downed the man and was beating him, when the woman seized a shovel and struck grandfather on the head and then chased him out into the yard. He ever afterwards carried a scar on his forehead."

In a letter of Mar. 3, 1921, he described his grandfather as being large, weighing about 200 pounds, six feet high with gray hair. He was quick, nervous and high strung. His great grandfather was a small man. The Indians hated him. One day they caught a man who they thought was Cross and cut him all to pieces—but it happened not to be the right man. . . .

> "He (the grandfather) was sent to New Orleans to take part in the battle at that place in 1814, but arrived too late for action."
>
> "My father was born in Ky., Dec., 1793, and my mother was born in Ky. Dec. 17, 1797. They were married Aug. 28, 1817, and came to Mo. later in the same year and settled in Howard Co."
>
> "At Braddock's Defeat in Penn. in the French and Indian War, he (Wm., the emigrant) was severely wounded by a bullet which lodged in his shoulder, and eventually, some forty years later caused his death. . . . He married and settled in Botetourt Co., Va. . . . My grandfather, William Cross, was born in Va. Aug. 22, 1766, and moved to Ky. There by his first wife, Sarah McCown, he had two sons, George and John. After these children were born, he separated from his wife and took his son, John, back to his folks in Va., and his wife took George and went to her folks in Tenn. The reason she took the oldest son with her was because he could drive a team back to where her people lived. Later she married a man named Adam Moore and moved to Ill. where they reared a large family. One of them (the Moore children), Samuel Moore, visited our family in Mo. in 1858, and I was with him in Ill. in 1864."
>
> "My father, John Cross, once went on horseback from Mo. to Ill. to visit his mother and her family. They were surprised and overjoyed to see him. He also visited his brother George, who settled in Ill. and reared a large family there.
>
> "My grandfather, William Cross, and most of his children moved from Ky. to Mo., and settled in Randolph and Macon counties."

Elmer Cross of Clarence, Mo., relates this story about his father:

"After the completion of the Hannibal and St. Joe R. R., now of the C. B. and Q. system—the first R. R. built west of the Mississippi River, it was announced that the first train was to run through what is now Clarence. He being of an excitable nature planned to see this train. So he saddled up an old mule and made for the R. R. In the distance he could hear the puff of the engine and see great clouds of smoke. The mule also being excitable while yet some distance away, took fright and ran away towards home. By the time they were quieted down the train was out of sight. The next time he came to town to see his first train, he rode a horse and getting off a mile from the R. R. and tying his horse to a tree, he walked in and saw the wonderful train.

"During the rebellion Pa was drafted in the Federal Army, but being a Southern sympathizer, was taken prisoner to Paris, Mo., and held under guard by men with fixed bayonets to prevent his escape. But he succeeded in working a ruse on them by telling them his mother was very ill and he wished a furlough. It was granted. He visited his mother and then in company with William Shores and others, ran off to Bloomington, Ill., and remained till after the war. Pa belonged to that ill fated company of soldiers that was massacred at Centralia, Mo. I think this happened the next day after Pa ran away."

14. HARRISON CROSS[4] (John,[3] William,[2] William[1]), b. Apr. 21, 1838, near Roanoke, Howard Co., Mo., named in honor of William Henry Harrison, the Whig president, whom his father greatly admired. At the age of ten years while riding a horse to water, Harrison was thrown and his left arm broken. A young doctor was called and set the arm, but bound it so tightly that it had to be amputated. There was little left of the arm, but he developed wonderful strength in the other arm. He could handle a rifle or do a man's full work in timber or at the plow. He was six feet, two inches in height, of fine physique and universally popular. He was given a fairly good education and became a school teacher, in which profession he commanded the best wages paid to teachers of country schools.

He espoused the cause of the South and took up arms in its behalf. He went south with Gen. Price, and in the battle of Springfield, Mo., he fell wounded. Soon he recovered consciousness and on examination, found his only wound, was a bullet stripe across his breast. He and a few comrades were cut off from Price's army and went into Ky. He made his way to the home of his uncle James Blythe, in Madison Co., Ky., and there remained for nearly a year. Having only one arm he was not suspected of having been a Confederate soldier and was not molested by the Union soldiers that he met frequently while there. He was well treated by his uncle's family and thought so much of them that he named his daughters for his two cousins, Dovey and Lucy.

He returned to Mo. and again began teaching but was arrested and banished from the state as a southern sympathizer. He went to Ill. but soon returned and taught school again.

His Aunt Vicy Cross bought the old Cross homestead and willed it to him on condition that he should care for her until her death. There Aunt Vicy lived for many years but being very fleshy, could not care for herself. So she had living with her Miss Fanny Lamb whose family were among the early settlers of that section.

On Apr. 9, 1872, Harrison Cross married Fanny Lamb, b. Feb. 13, 1851, daughter of William Lamb and Missouri Ann George, granddaughter of William George and Lucy Willis from Danville, Ky. Not long after their marriage, while driving to church at Roanoke, Aunt Vicy fell from the wagon and was killed. Harrison lived on the farm a few years longer, then sold out and moved to Texas, and from there to Okla. He settled near Sasakwa and died there Dec. 16, 1896, from the effects of an internal injury received from a horse's falling down with him a year previously. He was buried in the McGee Cemetery near his home. His wife married again and died there in 1921.

Excerpts from letters of Harrison Cross to Henry Clay Cross, then in Neoga, Ill.:

Richmond, Ky.
June the 22nd, 1865.

Mr. Henry C. Cross,
My dear Brother,

I received your most welcome letter this evening and its contents was perused with pleasure, I was truly glad to hear that you was well but sorry to hear that you were but little better pleased with that part of the country, for I hoped you would find a much better class of people and enjoy yourself some better. . . .

And if you go to that territory (Nebraska) this fall and you are pleased with the country I will come soon next spring for I believe that is the place to go to make a start in the world. In this country where all are rich old settlers it is hard for one to get a start. Land is worth from fifty to one hundred dollars per acre, and if one wishes to go into society he must dress well here—and that will always keep a person out of change and when one gets out of money they lose their best friends.

I am enjoying myself very well here. I have a good many stock to see after, but I have to go to every party and everything that is to do with my cousins, Lucy and Dovey. This week I have been with them at the great examination at the Richmond College which will last all week.

I get a good many letters from Mo. They all say that times are still bad, and I want you to be careful when you go back and not get into any dangers or difficulties. Times are very quiet here at the present time, except there is a horse stolen or a negro walks off and assert his freedom occasionally.

I want you when you leave Ill. to write to me often and keep me posted where you are and write in your next where Uncle Thomas Howard is at. What is his address? Write soon and often,

Your affectionate brother,
Harrison C.

Mr. H. C. Cross, (Clarence, Mo.),

Dear Brother:

Yours of Feb. 19th came to hand last Monday. I was glad to hear from you and family. We are all well at this time. I am on a rented farm this year which I pay for in work. I have to stake and rider a fence around sixteen acres and grub a corner of about three acres, then I get all I can make and a cow and calf to boot.

I bought eighty acres of land with no improvements on it, at $2.50 per acre, and have the lumber ready to put me up a house, but will not build till the crop is laid by.

We are having a very dry time here, no rain of account for several weeks. We had a hard winter, or what the old settlers say, but the easiest I ever experienced. We had about two weeks cold weather, snow fell four inches deep and ice was two inches thick on the creeks. I think this will be a good country to live in. Cattle and all stock go through the winter without feeding though several died while the cold weather lasted.

This is a new country and only settled by neighborhood. Land can be had from one to five dollars per acre. Timber enough to fence and fire wood but the timber is not good, mostly post oak, except on creeks where you find plenty pecan, hackberry and cottonwood. Stock rates: cows $15 to $20, three year old steers $20 to $25, two year $15 to $20, yearlings from $8 to $15, calves $5 to $8. Mules from $50 to $100, horses none selling. Times are hard here, everybody out of money.

I want you to come and look at the country and see how you like it and take nobody's say-so. I would be glad to have you near me but you must come and look and see. Come next fall and we will take a good look. I want to look around after while and see more of the country.

Al Green is my nearest neighbor at present, but one is building in a quarter. Al lives half a mile, my land and his join. Hamp Green started for the south part of the state this morning.

Sis likes here very well and she says she would like it better if she had more neighbors.

I will close this hasty written letter hoping you will excuse mistakes and write soon. Give my kind wishes to Sue and the children and same to yourself.

Your brother, Harrison Cross.

At the Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Cross, celebrated by a community program in the school house at Keyes, Calif., Apr. 11, 1926, the following story of their lives was read:

"Many years ago in far off Missouri a troth was plighted with prayer and consideration for the future. A country boy with meager schooling, except that obtained by his own ambitious efforts, and a shy country girl whose capabilities were hidden in the efficient services of everyday home-making, linked their destinies together and on April 12, 1876, they started hand in hand down the road of life.

"Many joys and sorrows, disappointments and dreams fulfilled, have made up this journey of theirs. Many homes have been theirs and many have they blessed as they have met their fellow travelers on the long road.

"The first years of their life together were spent in country homes in Howard, Randolph and Audrain counties, Mo. Four children, three girls and a boy, came to gladden their home. Because of the children another move was made to Boone county, Mo., so that the children could have the higher education that the parents had always longed for.

"While the mother managed the home and all its interests, training the children by precept and example to highest forms of service, the father in similar way was using every ounce of influence in the cause of righteousness among his fellow men. He had opportunity for this form of service because for thirty-three years he taught school, thus reaching many immature lives who were influenced by his uprightness. As a teacher he was several times county school commissioner of Audrain county. In local lodges he was always a leader. He edited two newspapers, one at Laddonia and one at Mexico, Mo. In Columbia he was joint editor of another newspaper and led a movement that eventually drove the saloons out of Columbia in days before prohibition was even considered. Wherever this couple lived or went their influence was always felt, because they lived lives of service.

"In November, 1908, a move was made that changed the course of their lives. Pioneer souls ever desire new territory to develop, so off they started for the land of their dreams in the Golden State. Here a new life of joy and service with plenty of hard work began, and here they have made a home for themselves.

"So tonight we are here to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of these loved ones—John Newton Cross and Olivia McClure Harris, who have come thus far on the road of life carrying their burdens as Christians should, sharing their joys with fellow wayfarers and always lifting a helping hand to any in distress.

"At the end of time, if St. Peter should ask in stern tones for them to tell truthfully which spot on earth was dearest to them, without hesitation and together as always, they would answer Keyes, California."

27. SUSAN CATHERINE CROSS[5] (William,[4] John,[3] William,[2] William[1]). b. Jan. 21, 1854, in Randolph Co., Mo., d. Mar. 27, 1913; m. Mar. 27, 1873, Presly True Martin, b. v. Loretta Nadine, b. Mar. 16, 1890, in Audrain Co., Mo., d. Mar. 21, 1891, buried in New Hope Cemetery.

28. JAMES THOMAS CROSS[5] (William,[4] John,[3] William,[2] William[1]), b. Aug. 6, 1856, at Clark, Mo.; m. May 28, 1893, at Sturgeon, Mo., Cora Woods, b. May 9, 1870, d. Nov. 14, 1921, buried at Moberly, Mo., daughter of Robert Clark Woods and Elizabeth Seymour, granddaughter of Barnabas Woods and Martha Cora Woods, also of John and Chloe Seymour. The Woods family was originally from Ky.

Children (Cross)—born in St. Louis:

i. Harold Woods, b. Mar. 29, 1895, d. Oct. 13, 1895.
ii. Hilda Kathleen, b. Mar. 29, 1895, d. July 26, 1895.

The following account of the life of James Thomas Cross is taken from a Moberly, Mo. paper of April 17, 1927.

"James Thomas Cross was born Apr. 16, 1856, on a farm near the present location of Clark, and is still a citizen of Randolph Co. . . . At that early date wild game abounded, there were thousands of prairie chickens, wild turkeys and quail which found abundant food on the prairies. Wild pigeons were so plentiful that at one time when they were flying north they were so thick that the sun was partly obscured for a day.

"Mr. Cross lived a happy, contented life on the farm. . . . When he was twenty years old he began teaching in the rural districts. He attended college to complete his education and graduated from the Mo. State University in 1881. After graduation Mr. Cross continued his work as instructor, being principal of the public schools in Renick, Sturgeon and Brunswick. During these years he was called Prof. Cross. . . .

"Moberly knows Mr. Cross as a leading lumber dealer and this era of his life began in 1892 when he accepted a position under D. S. Flagg Lumber Co. For fifteen years he remained with this company. During this time he had lumber yards in three Mo. towns, Clark, Louisiana, and New Franklin. . . .

"He was a citizen of New Franklin for twelve years, during which time he managed the Flagg Lumber Yard with credit to himself and profit to the Company. While there, he was president of the Building and Loan Association, president of the School Board, Master of the Masonic Lodge and Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School.

"Mr. Cross came to Moberly in July, 1907, and established the J. T. Cross Lumber Co. This proved to be a successful enterprise and the business has steadily increased year by year until the Cross Lumber Co. now ranks among the leading lumber companies in the middle west.

"Mr. Cross was elected mayor of Moberly in 1919. He served one term and was not a candidate for re-election. . . .

"In 1921 Cora Cross his faithful wife entered the great beyond. She was a great help to her husband, his constant companion and co-worker in all things for the good of mankind. The work of Mr. and Mrs. Cross during the World War was outstanding and of inestimable benefit.

"Since the death of his beloved wife Mr. Cross has left most of the management to his faithful younger partners and now spends much of his time traveling. He has already visited every state in the United States as well as Cuba, Old Mexico, and Canada.

"Mr. Cross is one of the leading members of the Fourth Street M. E. Church, the secretary of the Board of Trustees and Lay Leader for the church.

"At 220 South Fourth Street, a commodious and modern residence, the gift of Mr. Cross to the church, is known as the "Cora Cross Memorial Parsonage." This fifteen thousand dollar house stands as a husband's testimony to the sincerity of her religious belief and a memorial to her great influence in the life of their church."

Another outstanding gift made by Mr. Cross to the Methodist Church is the Cross Memorial Tower at Fayette, Mo. This is a part of the College Church of Central College, located on the campus at Fayette. The tower is at the rear of the new Gothic stone church. It is 24 by 36 feet in area, rising to a height of 96 feet. It is the central piece of the campus. It is erected over the main walk through the college campus. It is indeed very beantiful and imposing and is a lasting memorial to his wife, parents, brothers, sisters and children, whose names are inscribed thereon.

Dec. 13, 1878, in Audrain Co., Mo., graduated in 1896 as Salutatorian from the Mexico High School, then specialized in Music and Art, with work at Hardin College, U. of Mo., and one summer at Chicago University. Supervisor of Music in the St. Charles and Columbia, Mo., schools. Later she moved to Calif. with her parents where she devoted her time to teaching vocal and instrumental music.

On Dec. 20, 1910, at Ceres, Calif, she married Charles Henry Caswell, b. July 23, 1876, in Cherokee, Iowa. The ceremony was performed by an uncle, Rev. A. K. Caswell. Mr. Caswell is a manufacturer and rancher and very active in community affairs. He lives on a large ranch near Modesto, Calif., R. # 4.

The Caswell family came from Canada, and is of Scotch and English parentage, although coming from Ireland. The name Caswell is derived from Casa-wallonis, a warrior of Normandy. The mother of Thomas Caswell was named Wallace, of the family of the famous Wallaces of Scotland. The older Caswell family went from England in early days to North Ireland as missionaries.

Henry Caswell is the son of Thomas Caswell and Mary Orinda Andrews, grandson of Andrew Caswell and Mary Dickson, also of Richard Andrews and Jane Davidson. In "The Andrews Family," a Genealogical Biography of Charles E. and Mary Clark Andrews, the following facts are given:

This Richard Andrews was born Jan. 4, 1797, at West Stockbridge, Mass., d. Dec. 12, 1886; m. Jane Davidson, b. Mar. 3, 1816, d. Feb. 10, 1895, daughter of Israel Davidson and Martha Van Houten, b. 1785, d, 1856, and granddaughter of John Davidson and wife Mariah.

The parents of this Richard Andrews were: Theodore Andrews, b. 1765, d. 1850, and Orinda Bosworth, b. 1767, died at 92.

The parents of Theodore Andrews were: Joshua Andrews, b. Dec. 11, 1707, d. 1786, and Sibyl Stoddard, b. 1705, d. 1785.

The parents of Joshua Andrews were: Joseph Andrews, Jr., b. 1678, d. 1756, and Sarah Curtiss, d. 1760.

The parents of Joseph Andrews, Jr., were: Joseph Andrews, b. May 26, 1651, d. 1706, and Rebekah ————.

The parents of Joseph Andrews were: John and Mary Andrews, emigrants from Essex Co., England to Conn. in 1640; he died in 1643, she in 1694.

PART III

George Cross of Illinois and His Descendants.

GEORGE CROSS OF ILLINOIS AND HIS DESCENDANTS

The story of the first two generations of Crosses has been told in Part I of this volume. In Part II we traced the families of Crosses who located in Missouri. In Part I we noted that William Cross, Jr., who died in Missouri, was twice married and that the children by the first marriage were John and George. When the parents separated the mother took George to Tennessee. About 1815 George Cross located in Illinois where most of his children were born and where numerous of his descendants continue to reside. Part III is devoted to the history of George Cross and his descendants.

In numbering the families we have continued the system followed in the first and second parts of the history, George Cross being No. 4 in Part I. The last number in Part II is 131, so the first child of George Cross is given the number 132. In listing the generations, George Cross and his children are listed under the third generation, because he is of the third generation from William Cross, Sr.

An interesting story was published in a Mattoon, Illinois, paper in 1925, telling of the Old Baptist Cemetery near Neoga where the older members of the George Cross family are buried. Among those buried there are Hughes Cross, born in 1794 and died in 1871; Sarah McCown Moore who died Feb. 19, 1851, and her mother, Peggy McCown, who died in 1836. The land for this cemetery was given by George W. Cross, the grandson of the ancestor of the Cross family of Illinois. This burying ground was taken over from the Indians by the Primitive or Separate Baptist Church in pioneer days. Adjoining it was built the church called "The Old Concord Church."

> "Tradition is that the pioneer members of the Primitive Baptists entered into a covenant with the aborigines that the time honored customs of the tribes would be carried out ad infinitum, that the governance of the burying ground would be perpetuated as the Indians did until the second coming of Christ.
> "The legend which came to the ears of the pioneer Baptists from the Indians, was that they had been taught by the Great Spirit that the heavens would retain the spirits of the Indians who had passed beyond until Jehovah came to call forth the quick and the dead to a newness of life following their resurrection.
>
> "One of the rules of the burying ground is that no plot or parcel of it should be sold for a money consideration."

THIRD GENERATION

4. GEORGE CROSS[3] (William,[2] William[1]), b. Jan. 31, 1792, in Va.; m. (Miss) Major Hughes, b. in 1794 in Ky. or Ga. Little is known of her people except that her mother was born in Germany and she had brothers and sisters named John, William, Elias, Abigail, Sally and Hetty. She died Jan. 12, 1871, in Ill., and was buried in the Old Baptist Cemetery. Mr. Cross moved to Ellis Co., Texas, in 1855 and died there June 18, 1857. In 1867 the family returned to Illinois.

PART IV.

John Cross of Virginia and His Descendants.

JOHN CROSS OF VIRGINIA AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

For years the story was carried by the Missouri Crosses that the first of the Cross family in America came over with Braddock and after his defeat and disbandment of the army, settled in Botetourt Co., Va. Because the family records showed that William Cross, Jr., had come from Botetourt Co., an examination of the records of that county was made. No records were found of the William Cross, Jr., who went to Ky. and then to Mo., except his marriage to Mary Eliza Rice, his second wife, but the records abound with other Cross names. The first name to be recognized is that of William Cross and wife Elizabeth who had children named William, Mary, Jane, John, and Elizabeth; then the records show many deeds by John Cross who married Polly Mays.

Other Cross names of a later date were found, but these cannot be connected with our family, although there might be some relationship. A William Cross made a will in 1835 and mentioned his wife Ann. Records show his first wife was Margaret, and he had children, whether by first or second wife is not indicated, named Jane, who married William Hill and went to Portage Co., Ohio, Esther McMurry, Elizabeth Flint and Polly who married John Upton. Ann's will was probated Dec., 1840, and mentioned her granddaughter, Ellen Compton, daughter, Jane Compton, and two daughters, Matilda Boyd and Ann Moore.

Then there was another William Cross who had a wife Margaret, and a son, Thomas, who married Aug. 18, 1801, Elizabeth Anderson. He made a land deed Oct. 9, 1826, and was dead by 1854, when his estate was appraised. He owned much land, evidently too much, for the records show that he lost much of it. He had sons (1) Augustine W., of Lynchburg, Va., whose wife was Adaline E., and (2d) John A., whose estate was appraised Apr. 16, 1874, and whose wife was Diana S., and (3) Samuel, whose wife was Agnes. Transfers of land were also made between Thomas R. Cross and wife, Olivia, and members of this same family.

In the winter of 1931 inquiry led to the discovery of a descendant of John Cross and Polly Mays, Mr. J. C. Dill, cashier of the bank at Buchanan, Va. He in turn referred us to Mr. L. L. Cross, an older member of the family at Long Beach, Calif., who had always been interested in family relationships and because of his age, was familiar with older generations. He made possible the finding of Mr. Otto Scott, of Mexico, Ind., who gave the story of the related families of Whisler and Kinzie in Ind. Other members of the family have responded promptly, making it possible to add at the last minute (literally six months) the story of the Va. Crosses. It is not complete but enough is here, to make it possible for those related to understand the relationships. With all the help possible from the descendants of John Cross, of Virginia, no one has been able to produce records or legends going back of the material produced by the Missouri Crosses. Perhaps because of living in a new country, the Missouri pioneers looked back in longing to the country they had left and so kept fresh in the minds of their descendants the stories of earlier days.

In numbering the families we have continued the system followed in the earlier sections of this history, John Cross being No. 2 in Part I. The last number in Part III is 289, so the first child of John Cross is given the number 290. In listing the generations, John Cross and his children are listed under the second generation as he was the son of William Cross, Sr., the immigrant.

SECOND GENERATION.

2. JOHN CROSS,[2] (William[1]), b. in Botetourt Co., Va., in 1761; m. Sept. 24, 1795, by Rev. Samuel Gray, Polly Mays, daughter of John Mays and sister of James, John, Matt, Robert, and Susannah Mays; the sister being the wife of John Tate. (These details from Botetourt Records.)

Children (Cross)—all born in Botetourt Co., Va.:

i. Charlotte, m. Dec. 22, 1825 (Botetourt Records, Andrew McClure. They had three sons. Thomas served in the Southern Army, came back to Va., stayed until both parents died, then went to Wichita, Kan., about 1872, stayed several years, moved to Ft. Worth, Texas, where he died about 1915. Another son, Marquis was said to have died in early youth. A letter dated Nov. 20, 1857, from Fincastle, Va., was written by Marquis D. McClure to his aunt, Nancy Cross Kinzie, at Mexico, Ind. He refers to the fact that he is not yet married and also says, "Uncle William Ireland received two letters from Uncle Samuel which I had the pleasure of reading. I was very glad to hear that you were all well and had good luck on your journey and are pleased with the country and its inhabitants. Marriages have been scarce in this country since you left but I suppose it is owing to the pressure of money matters and not for want of affection in the hearts of the young men toward their lady loves," etc.

ii. Avalina buried in Green Lawn Cemetery, Mexico, Ind. Inscription on her tombstone reads: "Evalina, wife of William McClure, died Mar. 27, 1881, aged 72 years, 7 mo., 7 da." Their children were: (1) Andrew Jackson (Jack), m. Elizabeth Gish daughter of Daniel Gish. Children were: William, Catherine, and Jennie. They lived in Jewel Co., Kan. (2) John Buchanan (Buck), m. Agnes Denton. Last address, Jewel Co., Kan. (3) Charlie, d. at Old People's Home at Mexico, Ind. His tomb in Green Lawn Cemetery has the inscription: "Charles McClure, d. July 22, 1890, aged 36 years, 7 mo., 3 da." (4) Mary Ann, m. (1st) Ben Fleshman and had a son, George W.; Ben Fleshman d. in Va. and in 1871 or 2, she m. (2nd) James Adams. While visiting her brothers in Kan. she died at her brother John's home on Easter Sunday, 1888. Her body was brought back to her home and buried in the Adamsboro Cemetery. It is said that one of her brothers in Kan. was a Dunkard preacher. Joe Buskirk, a foster son, lives at Logansport, Ind., R. # 5.

290. iii. John Mays, b. 1812; m. Mary S. Hammond.
291. iv. Aurelia, b. 1813; m. Henry Whisler.

294. vii. Nancy, b. 1818; m. Samuel Francis Kinzie.

viii. Cynthia, lived to be old, never married, buried on the Schultz farm near Buchanan, Va. A deed (Book 28, p. 80) shows she deeded 36 acres of land, Lot No. 11 of her father's estate to her niece, Mary Jane Dill, dated Aug. 4, 1846.

ix. Elizabeth, m. Abraham Peary, had a large family in Botetourt Co., but all efforts to reach them have failed.

x. Susannah, m. Joseph Holmes, is said to have had trouble with the rest of the family over the division of the estate, left Va., taking family Bible and other records with them. Botetourt records show a deed dated Mar. 26, 1853, an agreement between Joseph Holmes and Elizabeth Cross, transfering land to Stuart B. Penn, 120 acres at $20 an acre—land assigned in division of John Cross estate to Avaline McClure, wife of William McClure, Lewis, Aurelia, wife of Henry Whisler, Susannah, wife of Joseph Holmes and Melvina, wife of William Ireland. Another record dated Mar. 13, 1856, gives Joseph Holmes power of attorney to sell lands. Wm. Bell, clerk of Rhea Co., State of Tenn., does this for Susannah T. Holmes, wife of Joseph Holmes and Elizabeth Cross. (An examination of the Rhea Co., Tenn., records did not locate this family).

295. xi. Melvina, m. William Ireland.

THIRD GENERATION.

290. JOHN MAYS CROSS,[3] (John,[2] William[1]), b. 1812, in Botetourt Co., Va., d. Oct. 22, 1873, in Kansas; m. in 1847, at Fincastle, Va., Mary Susan Hammond, b. 1822, d. Mar. 5, 1905, daughter of Peter Hammond and Margaret Houseman. John M. was the last of the family to marry; he and Cynthia lived together until his mother's death.

They have one son, Harry, b. at Valley Center, Kan., Nov. 1, 1889. Address, 745 Litchfield Ave., Wichita, Kan.

L. L. Cross says: "I think it would be impossible to get hold of any old records as the old Cross home was sold about the time my father married and it went into the hands of strangers . . . It has been forty-seven years since the last of the family left Va.

"My two oldest brothers went to Sedgwick, Kan., in 1870, but after my father died my oldest brother went back to Va., and ran the farm until 1884, then he and my mother moved to Kan.

"My wife and I made our last trip to Va. in 1926. At that time we went to the old Cross home. The same old house is there where all the family were born and raised in it. It is a big two story log house with basement. It is lathed and plastered on the inside and weatherboarded on the outside. It has brick chimneys at each end and looks just like it did when I was a boy. The same spring that furnished water for the Cross family more than one hundred years ago was flowing nice when we were there."

CHAPTER I

BRIEF RECORD OF McCOWN FAMILY.

William Cross, Jr., son of William Cross, the emigrant pioneer, of Botetourt County, Virginia, about 1791 married, probably in Sullivan County, Tennessee, not far from Botetourt County, Sarah McCown, born in 1774, daughter of George McCown who was born in Scotland and died probably in Christian County, Kentucky, where his family lived for several years, and his wife Peggy who was born in Ireland and died in Illinois in 1836. A sandstone marker, now badly defaced, marks her resting place in the Old Baptist Cemetery six miles from Neoga, Coles County, Illinois. Tradition says that George and Peggy McCown were married in England and emigrated to America.

When William Cross, Jr., and Sarah McCown were married they went to Madison County, Kentucky, and settled there, where two sons were born to them, George and John. About 1794 for some unexplained reason, they agreed to separate. Sarah took her son George and went to her relatives in Tennessee, and William took the other son and went to his people in Botetourt County, Virginia.

In Tennessee, Sarah (McCown) Cross married a Mr. Clark but soon separated from him. Then either in Tennessee or Christian County, Kentucky, to which the McCown family had moved, she married Adam Moore by whom she had ten more (Moore) children. The most or all of these children were born in Christian County. The Moore family and Peggy McCown (it is uncertain if her husband, George McCown, was living then) emigrated to Illinois about 1812 or a few years later; after two or three moves they settled in Coles County, Illinois.

Sarah (McCown) (Cross) Moore died Feb. 19, 1851, aged seventy-seven years, and was buried in the Old Baptist Cemetery near Neoga, Illinois. After the death of his wife, Adam Moore returned to Christian County, Kentucky, and lived there until his death. Several members of this family lived in Coles County in the early days, but no trace was found of the descendants in recent years. A few years before he died, Samuel Moore, a son of Adam Moore, visited the Crosses in Missouri and renewed family relationships.

Children (Moore):

i. David, m. Elizabeth, d. Oct. 14, 1849, aged 43 yrs., 7 mo., 12 da. He died in Mo. in 1877.
ii. Peggy, m. Merriwether Sanders Jan. 16, 1813, in Christian Co., Ky., and they moved to Miss. in 1850.
iii. Elizabeth, d. in Ill. in 1859, m. Abraham Sayers.
iv. Alexander, d. in Ill. in 1859.
v. James, b. June 1812, d. in Ill. July, 1833.
vi. William, d. in Ill. in 1860.
vii. Samuel, d. Dec. 8, 1865, aged 50 yrs., 9 mo., 20 da.; m. Rebecca who d. Feb. 11, 1855, aged 29 yrs., 3 mo., 24 da. Three other children.

Other dates from the Old Baptist Cemetery that refer to this family are:

Infant son of D. and E. Moore, d. Feb., 1833.
Elizabeth, daughter of D. and E. Moore, d. Sept. 1, 1843, age 1 yr., 6 mo.
Infant of D. and M. Moore, d. Feb., 1852, age 2 days.
Margaret A., daughter of D. and M. Moore, d. Aug. 6, 1854, age 1 yr., 4 mo., 17 da.
Samuel, son of D. and E. Moore, d. June 30, 1846, age 1 yr., 11 mo., 28 da.
Margaret E., daughter of B. and S. Moore, d. Oct. 15, 1854, age 2 yrs., 2 mo., 19 da.
George, son of D. and E. Moore, d. Mar., 1846, age 12 da.

CHAPTER II

HARRIS-MARTIN FAMILIES.

Tradition says, and all known records indicate, that the Harris family is of Welsh origin. The following are some of the publications that give an idea of the magnitude and history of the Harris and allied families in America: "Harris Genealogy" by Gideon Harris; "Abridged Compendium of American Genealogy," Vol. I and III;" "Colonial Families of the United States," Vol. VII;" "Americans of Gentle Birth;" "Claiborne Pedigree" by G. M. Claiborne; "History and Genealogies" by William Harris Miller; "Gentry Family in America" by Richard Gentry; "The Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch" of April 10, 1904 and Feb. 26, 1905; and "Lamb's Biographical Dictionary."

An old Harris Bible in the possession in 1902 of Mr. E. Stuart Johnson of Richmond, Va., has this record: "Robert Harris came from Wales 1650-1660 and located in the Forks of Hanover, married Mrs. Rice, nee Claiborne. Issue: Col. William Harris, Burgess for Hanover also Henrico, married Temperance Overton."

John Fiske in his "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors" says "Mary Claiborne, daughter of Sec'y William Claiborne, married Edward Rice and after his death she married Maj. Robert Harris of the Fork in Hanover County."

FIRST GENERATION

(1HM) ROBERT HARRIS,[1] b. 1635, d. 1701, emigrated from Wales to America between 1650 and 1660, married about 1670 Mary (Claiborne) Rice, daughter of William Claiborne, the first Secretary in the Virginia Colony, appointed by the King.

On a brass memorial tablet in Cliburn Church, near Penrith, Westmorelandshire, is the following: "Insuper et in memoriam Guielmi de Cleyborne sen Claiborne primi e Secretis Coloniae Virginiensis qui anno vixit MDCXXVII" (See "Virginia Carolorum," p. 43, by Edward Neill.)

Col. William Claiborne, b. 1587, d. 1677, married 1st Jane Butler of London, married 2nd, in Va., Elizabeth ——— about 1644 and his children were: 1. William; 2. Leonard; 3. Jane; 4. Thomas; 5. Mary, b. about 1649, m. 1st Edward Rice, m. 2nd Maj. Robert Harris about 1670. Col. William Claiborne was the second son of Sir Edmund Cliburne and his wife Grace Bellingham and is the twenty-seventh generation in descent through Alfred the Great, King of England, from Athelwolf, King of the West Saxons, who was the father of Alfred. (See Browning's Magna Charta Baron's; Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerages, 1831 Edition for Neville, Beauchamp, Bohun, DeToni, Stafford, de Clare, Bigod and De Quincy.)

So far as is known Robert Harris had but the one child.

Children (Harris)—born in Va.:

2HM i. William, b. about 1672, m. Temperance Overton.

SECOND GENERATION.

(2HM) WILLIAM HARRIS[2] (Robert[1]), b. about 1672, d. 1720, a large land owner in Virginia, and Burgess for Hanover and Henrico Counties, m. about 1696 Temperance Overton, b. Mar. 2, 1679, d. Feb. 19, 1710. Temperance Overton is buried at "Glencairn" and this is the inscription on her tombstone:

"Here lies the body of
the 19th of February 1710"

She was the daughter of William Overton of "Glencairn," Hanover County, Va., and a granddaughter of Col. Robert Overton of England, who distinguished himself at the Battle of Marston Moor, and went with Cromwell to Scotland and was in charge of a brigade at the Battle of Dunbar, soldier and scholar, an intimate friend of John Milton who celebrated Overton's exploits in his "Defensa Secunda." He was b. 1609, d. post 1668, m. Anne, daughter of Jeremy Gardner of Stratford Box, Middlesex, Eng.

William Overton, son of Col. Robert, was born 1638, married Elizabeth Waters, Nov. 24, 1670. They emigrated to Va., 1681 and their children were: (1), Elizabeth, b. June 28, 1673, m. Robert Anderson; (2), William, b. Aug. 14, 1675, m. Peggy Garland; (3), Temperance, b. Mar. 2, 1679, d. Feb. 19, 1710, m. William Harris; (4), Samuel, b. Aug. 14, 1685, m. Miss Carr; (5), James, b. Aug. 14, 1688; (6), Barbara, b. Feb. 5, 1690, d. Oct. 30, 1766, m. John Winston.

Elizabeth Waters, wife of William Overton, was the daughter of Samuel Waters, b. about 1617, d. 1665, buried from St. Sepulchre's Without Newgate, London, Sept. 6, 1665. His wife Anne, d. 1700 and in her will mentions daughter, Elizabeth Overton and son-in-law, William Overton of Virginia.

Children (William Harris and Temperance Overton):

3HM i. Maj. Robert, b. 1698, m. Mourning Glenn.
ii. Overton, m. Anne Nelson.
iii. Frederick, m. Eliza Terrill.
iv. Temperance, m. ——— Baker.
v. Jemima, m. William Overton.
vi. Keziah, m. James Nelson.
vii. Mary, m. Edward Nelson.
viii. Anne Emillia, m. William Day.
ix. Benjamin, m. Mary ———. He was a soldier in Capt. Christopher Hudson's Co. of Rangers in 1758 until legally discharged. Fredk. Harris, brother of Benjamin, guardian to Overton Harris, heir-at-law to said Benjamin Harris. (See Va. Colonial Militia, p. 28, by W. A. Crozier). Will of Benjamin Harris of Trinity Parish, Louisa Co., Va., proved Oct. 14, 1765; wife Mary, executor; brothers, Frederick and Robert Harris, James Overton, witnesses. Children: Overton, Robert and Nancy.

THIRD GENERATION

(3HM) MAJ. ROBERT HARRIS[3] (William,[2] Robert[1]), b. 1698, d. 1765, m. 1720, Mourning Glenn, b. 1702, d. 1776. He lived in Hanover Co., Va. When the County of Louisa was formed from Hanover in 1742, he was in the part cut off and in 1744 was Surveyor of Louisa Co. He served as Burgess for Hanover 1736-1738-1742 and patented lands in Albemarle Co. in 1750. He was sheriff of Louisa Co. in 1751 and subsequently located in Albemarle Co., holding various offices until his death in 1765. His will is recorded in Book 2, p ; 85.

"Mourning Glenn was a remarkable woman, kind, generous, charitable, a devout Christian, and much beloved by her acquaintances and offspring. Her children and descendants down through the generations gave a daughter the name 'Mourning,' showing their high estimation of Mourning Glenn Harris." (W. H. Miller's History and Genealogy). She had a brother, Tyre Glenn, and one of her several sons was "Tyre Harris;" so we find the name "Tyre or Tyre Harris," borne by scores of her descendants, and likewise the name "Overton," brought into the Harris family by Temperance Overton, has followed down through the generations, applied equally to boys and girls.

Children (Harris)—born in Va.:

i. James, b. 1722, d. 1792, was a private in 2nd Va. Regt., French and Indian War. (See W. A. Crozier, Va. Colonial Militia, p. 41.) He m. his cousin, Mary Harris.
ii. Tyre, b. about 1723.
4HM iii. Christopher, b. Feb. 1725, m. (1st) Mary Dabney; (2nd) Agnes (Nancy) McCord.
iv. Robert, m. Lucretia Brown. Capt. in the Revolution (See "Albemarle County in Virginia" p. 221, by Rev. Edgar Woods).

v. William, d. 1776, m. Hannah Jameson.
vi. Lucy, m. William Shelton.
vii. Sarah, m. John Rodes.
viii. ————, m. William Dalton.
ix. Mourning Glenn, m. Capt. John Jouett.
x. Elizabeth, m. William Crawford.
xi. Nancy, m. Joel Crawford.
xii. Anna, m. John Dabney.

FOURTH GENERATION

(4HM) CHRISTOPHER HARRIS[4] (Maj. Robert,[3] William,[2] Robert[1]), b. Hanover Co., Va., Feb., 1725, m. 1st in 1745, Mary Dabney, by whom he had seven children; m. 2nd in 1762, Agnes (Nancy) McCord, b. 1741, by whom he had ten children.

"Christopher Harris was in Ky. on the 17th day of May, 1780." "Christopher Harris enters 1200 acres on the North Fork of Licking, May 17, 1780." (See Jefferson Co., Ky., Entries, Book A, p. 66). Christopher Harris, member Ky. Militia 1780 (See "List of Revolutionary Soldiers of Virginia," p. 203, by H. J. Eckenrode.)

Quoting from his will: "And as to my lands on Licking waters, my will is that if they are obtained it should be sold and equally divided amongst my last set of children." This land was obtained, for the heirs of Christopher Harris, deceased, made a deed dated Dec. 2, 1809, to James Guthrie and Samuel Williams to 600 acres (a part of the 1200 acres) on Hinkston's Fork (which is the North Fork) of South Licking in Bourborn Co., Ky. (Madison Co. Records).

"Christopher Harris settled in Madison Co., Ky., about 1780, died about 1794" (See "Genealogy of the Harris Family" (manuscript) by E. Stuart Johnson).

One of the three counties created from Fincastle in 1776 was Kentucky County. In May, 1780, Kentucky was divided into three counties, viz: Jefferson, Fayette and Lincoln. Madison was taken from Lincoln in 1785. The will of Christopher Harris was probated in Madison Co., Mar. 14, 1794. All of his seventeen children reached adult age and all but one (Margaret who died single), married and reared families.

Children (Harris)—born in Va.:

i. Dabney, moved to N. C.
5HM ii. Sarah, m. James Martin.
6HM iii. Robert, m. Nancy Grubbs.
iv. Mourning, m. Foster Jones.
v. Christopher, m. Elizabeth Grubbs.
vi. Mary, m. George Jones.

xiii. Barnabas, m. Elizabeth Oldham.
xiv. James, d. 1787, m. Susannah Gass.
xv. Samuel, m. Nancy Wilkerson.
xvi. William, m. Ann Oldham. xvii. Isabella, m. John Bennett.

It would be difficult to find another family which has wielded a greater influence in social, religious, civic and political affairs than has that of old Christopher Harris and the descendants of his seventeen children. They are noted for long life and large families; high intelligence, thrift, religious zeal, daring and lofty patriotism. They have contributed greatly to the honor of this country at home and abroad. Their names are closely linked with the following families: Bennett, Blythe, Broaddus, Brown, Burnam, Bush, Chenault, Clay, Collins, Covington, Crews, Dinwiddie, Ellison, Embry, Estill, Eubank, Frakes, Garland, Gass, Gentry, Grubbs, Holman, Jamison, Jones, Kavanaugh, Martin, Maupin, Miller, Noland, Oldham, Rodes, Rollins, Smith, Stone, Thorp, Wallace, White, Wilkerson, Woods.

FIFTH GENERATION

(5HM) SARAH HARRIS[5] (Christopher,[4] Maj. Robert,[3] William,[2] Robert[1]), m. in Albermarle Co., Va., James Martin. They moved to Madison Co., Ky., 1786 or earlier, where he died. His will, dated July 5, 1796, was probated there Mar. 5, 1797. He was a member of Albemarle Co. Militia 1758, French and Indian War (See Hening's Statutes Vol. 7).

Children (Martin)—born in Albemarle Co., Va.:

(6HM) ROBERT HARRIS[5] (Christopher,[4] Maj. Robert,[3] William,[2] Robert[1]), m. Nancy Grubbs, daughter of Higgason Grubbs. They with their family emigrated to Madison Co., Ky.

Higgason Grubbs was trustee of Boonesborough, 1787, established Grubbs Station on Tates Creek, Madison Co., Ky., in 1781, was in Ky. in 1780. See Deposition of Higgason Grubbs, Madison Co. Circuit Court (E, p. 228) where he "deposeth that he and Jesse Coffee camped at the foot of the beech tree where we are now tonight in 1780 when they went out a buffalo hunting and made the letters H. G. J. C. and the figures 1780, etc."

Children (Harris)—born in Albemarle Co., Va.:

i. Tyre, m. June 2, 1803, Sallie Garland. In 1816 he and his family and many relatives emigrated from Madison Co., Ky., to Boone Co., Mo. He and his half cousin Judge Overton Harris (father of Judge James Harris), were among the leading citizens of Boone Co., Mo., where they spent the remainder of their lives. The descendants of these two men and families closely related to them, furnished a large contingent of the staunchest citizens of the counties of Boone, Randolph, Audrain and Callaway. Among the children of Tyre and Sallie Garland Harris were Overton, who m. Mary Ellington; William Hayden, who m. Amelia Ellington; Thomas Berry, who m. a cousin Frances Harris and were the parents of Marshall Harris of Sturgeon, Mo.; Sallie Ann, who m. Dr. A. Dinwiddie.

SIXTH GENERATION

(7HM) DAVID MARTIN[6] (Sarah,[5] Christopher,[4] Maj. Robert,[3] William,[2] Robert[1]), m. 1st Sallie Turner; 2nd, Oney Gentry, b. in Albemarle Co., Va., in 1767, moved with her parents to Madison Co., Kentucky, in 1786. The Martins had moved there perhaps some years earlier. About 1790 David Martin was killed at a house-raising by a falling log. There was only one child.

Children (Martin)—b. in Madison Co., Ky.:

8HM i. David Gentry, b. July 25, 1789.

ADDENDA-CLAIBORNE.

In November, 1647, there was a grant issued for 700 acres in the corporation of Elizabeth City to "Elizabeth Claiborne, the wife of Capt. William Claiborne, Esq., his Majesties Treasurer of this Colony of Virginia" for the transportation of fourteen persons into the colony whose "rights" had been assigned to the said Elizabeth by her said husband in the nature of dower according to an order of court June 11, 1644: See Records of New Kent County, Va.

Col. Wm. Claiborne m. Elizabeth, his second wife, in 1644, settling upon her a dower which they sold to Bertrand Servant. They took a honeymoon trip to England by way of Dublin, Ireland.

"Capt. Robert Moryson in a deposition upon record in Northampton County, Va., mentions that during the year 1644 his ship left Smith's Island for England by way of Dublin, Ireland, and that Capt. Clayborne and his wife and Capt. Philip Taylor were passengers" (See Virginia Carolorum, p. 416, by Edward D. Neill).

Thomas Claiborne and Mary Claiborne were children by Col. Wm. Claiborne's 2nd wife, Elizabeth. Mary was born about 1649. Thomas Claiborne sleeps at "Romancoke" and his tomb bears the arms: Argent, three chevrons, Sable interlaced in base, a chief of the last and the following inscription:

"Here Lyeth interred Ye body of Lt. Col.

Thomas Claybourne

son of Col. Wm. Claybourne

He departed this life ye 7th day of October Anno Domini

1683

Aetatis Suae 36

1 Mo: & 21 D"

(This makes him born Aug. 17, 1647.)

CHAPTER III

GENTRY-BLYTHE FAMILIES.

As Oney Gentry is the central figure in the history of the Gentry, Blythe, Cain, Conner, Robertson, and the Missouri John Cross families, as discussed in this work, it is appropriate that we notice briefly her ancestral connections. We quote a few paragraphs from "The Gentry Family in America," by Richard Gentry of Kansas City, published in 1909, as follows:

> "There is a tradition in the family that the first Gentrys to settle in America were two young men, brothers, who came from England as British soldiers, and settled in Virginia. In support of this tradition, we find that the first Gentrys to settle in America were Nicholas Gentry and Samuel Gentry, who entered land in New Kent County, Va., in 1684. A further fact tends to confirm this tradition: that the British soldiers sent over to Virginia by Charles II, with the Commissioners to settle the controversy between Gov. Berkeley and the people of Virginia at the time of the Bacon Rebellion in January, 1677, were not paid off and discharged until the fall of 1683, and many of them remained and settled in Virginia.
>
> "Mr. Charles W. Gentry of Harrodsburg, Ky., now deceased, said that he often heard his father, Richard Gentry, a Revolutionary soldier boast of his English blood, and at the same time speak of his first American ancestor and his brother as 'Two old British Red Coats.' "
>
> "The first authentic records that have been found of the Gentrys in America are in St. Peter's Parish Register of New Kent County, Virginia, and in the old land books of Virginia which contain the records of the early land grants.
>
> "The register of St. Peter's Parish of New Kent County, Va. . . . shows the following:
>
> " 'Elizabeth, daugh't of Nich's Gentry bapt. ye 29 day of August, 1687.
>
> " 'Nicholas sone of Nich's Gentry baptiz the 30 May, 1697.
>
> " 'Mable daught'r of Nich's Gentry, baptiz the 13 Dec'r, 1702.
>
> (The registers were badly kept so there may have been other children).
>
> "It appears from the records that these old immigrants continued to live in their old homes for about fifty five years and until they died. They were undoubtedly born in England, came to this country as very young men, and married in Virginia about the time they entered their lands.
>
> "Nicholas Gentry of the second generation, the son of Nicholas Gentry, the immigrant, lived in Albemarle County, Va., situated adjoining and west of Louisa County, at the time of his death. He left a will, which was probated in 1779, naming his several sons and other beneficiaries.
>
> "Most of the Gentrys of the third generation remained in Virginia: but David and Martin, sons of Nicholas II, followed their children to Madison County, Kentucky when old men."

By the above quotations, and other statements in connection therewith by the same author, we find that though the Gentrys first settled in New Kent County, Va., which extended indefinitely to the west, later by change of boundary lines, they were in Hanover Co., organized in 1720, then in Louisa County, organized in 1742, these counties being formerly a part of New Kent. The next county to the west was Albemarle, organized in 1744. Whether the Gentrys originally settled in this county, or moved there from Louisa is an unsettled question, but several families of Gentrys were in Albemarle as early as 1760. David and Martin were rearing families there in 1785. Some of their children were born in Louisa, but most of them were born in Albemarle.

Additional information also has been obtained from "History and Genealogies," published in 1907, by William Harris Miller (now deceased), of Richmond, Ky., from letters to the author by members of the family, and from various wills and court records.

FIRST GENERATION (GENTRY-BLYTHE (GB))

(1GB) NICHOLAS GENTRY, emigrant ancestor from England, large land owner in Virginia.

Children (Gentry)—born in New Kent Co., Va.:

i. Elizabeth, baptized in 1687.
2GB ii. Nicholas, baptized in 1697, m. 2 times.
iii. Mable, baptized in 1702.

SECOND GENERATION

(2GB) NICHOLAS GENTRY[2] (Nicholas[1]), m. 1st Mary, by whom he had four children; m. 2nd, Jane or Jean, by whom he had five children. His will was probated in Albemarle Co., Va.

Children (Gentry)—born in Hanover Co., Va.:

i. Moses, b. about 1722, d. 1808.
3GB ii. David, b. about 1724, m. 2 times.
iii. Nicholas, b. about 1726, d. 1787.
iv. Mary, m. Mr. Hinson.
v. Robert.
vi. Elizabeth, b. Oct. 14, 1731.
vii. Benajah, b. 1733, d. at age of 98.
viii. Nathan.
ix. Martin, b. Sept. 11, 1747, d. 1827.

THIRD GENERATION

(3GB) DAVID GENTRY[3] (Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. about 1724, first wife's name is unknown, by whom he had one child; m. 2nd, Mary Estes, daughter of Reuben Estes. Most of his children were born in Louisa County, Va., but all were reared in Albemarle County.

The daughters, Winnie and Oney, with their father and many other relatives moved to Madison Co., Ky., in 1786. The daughters married soon after they moved to Ky., after which their father lived with his son Richard, till he died in 1812. He was buried in the Gentry graveyard near Richmond, Ky.

Children (Gentry)—born in Louisa Co., Va.:

i. William.
4GB ii. David, b. in 1761, m. 2 times.
5GB iii. Richard, b. Sept. 26, 1763, m. 2 times.
6GB iv. Winifred, b. Sept. 15, 1765, m. William Martin.
7GB v. Ione (Oney), b. 1767, m. 3 times.

FOURTH GENERATION

(4GB) DAVID GENTRY[4] (David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. in 1761 in Louisa Co., Va., m. 1st, Jane Kendrick by whom he had five children; m. 2nd, Jane Haggard, by whom he had seven children. He moved to Madison Co., Ky., in 1786, and occupied lands he had bought from land speculators while living in Va. After living on and improving these lands for ten years, he found the titles were defective. After much litigation, he lost the lands. He died in 1813 and his three daughters by his last wife: Oney, aged 21, Jane, aged 11, Winnie, aged 8, continued to live together and never married. When the youngest was 47 years old, they made a will (See Madison Co., Ky., Records) devising their property "to the survivor of us all."

(5GB) RICHARD GENTRY[4] (David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. in Louisa Co., Va., Sept. 26, 1763; m. in Albamarle Co., Apr. 5, 1784, moved to Ky. in 1785. In 1786 he located in Madison Co., where by energy and thrift, he acquired 1000 acres of the finest blue grass land in Ky., and scores of slaves. He was the father of nineteen children, eighteen of whom (fifteen sons and three daughters), reared families of their own. Eight of his sons settled in Mo. before it became a state. Two of these sons, Reuben Estes Gentry and Richard Gentry (afterwards Gen. Dick Gentry) were pioneer settlers in Howard Co., but soon after moved to Boone Co. Gen. Dick Gentry was one of the founders of Columbia, Mo. He went from there to the Florida War, where, leading his regiment in the Battle of Okeechobee, he was killed on Christmas Day, 1837. He was an Ensign in the War of 1812, and participated in the Battle of the Thames, and was a member of the same company as his cousin James Blythe. Richard Gentry of Kansas City, author of "The Gentry Family in America" was a grandson of Gen. Dick Gentry.

Richard Gentry was a soldier under Washington at the capture of Cornwallis. From his farm south of Richmond, Ky., and adjoining the 1000 acre farm of his nephew and son-in-law, James Blythe, he gave a plot for burial purposes, known as the "Gentry Graveyard." He died Feb. 12, 1843, and was interred there.

In a letter dated Feb., 1931, Capt. James Blythe Anderson says of his great grandfather's grave: "I stood at the grave of Richard Gentry the other day. It is in an open field—all in ruins—not a stone marks his resting place. His house that stood close by, was no more, and the great poplar monarchs that seemed guarding the sacred dead, were departed, gone forever, and desolation encompassed all." The great stone slab, inscribed with the dates of his birth, death, and war record—that once lay upon his grave, had been carried away by vandals.

Richard Gentry married first, Jane Harris (See Christopher Harris 4HM) by whom he had twelve children; second, Nancy Guthrie by whom he had seven children. Of these nineteen children, Reuben Estes, the first, was born in Albemarle Co., Va., the others were born near Richmond, Madison Co., Ky.; the twelfth child, Jane Harris, b. Mar. 28, 1806, m. Jan. 15, 1824, her neighbor, Valentine White, by whom she had four children: (a) William H., b. Oct. 1825; (b) Richard J., b. Dec. 15, 1827; (c) Durrett, b. Nov. 18, 1829, had a Col.'s Commission, killed by Union Soldiers as he was starting to join the Confederate Army; (d) Nancy Jane, b. Mar. 8, 1832. Mrs. White married 2nd, Oct. 15, 1834, her cousin, and neighbor, James Blythe (See 8GB).

(6GB) WINIFRED GENTRY[4] (David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. Albemarle Co., Va., Sept. 15, 1765, moved to Ky. in 1786; m. in 1789, William Martin, b. in 1765, d. 1841. She d. Aug. 29, 1853, and both were buried in the Gentry graveyard. These dates were secured in 1925 from their tombstones which were found broken and badly defaced. The thirteen children of the Martins were all born in Madison Co., Ky. One of these children, Elizabeth, married Elias Sims and moved to Mo., where they reared a family, one of whom, William (familiarly called "Buffalo Bill Sims") was a large land owner, and a director of the Southern Bank at Mexico, Mo., of which Gov. Charles Hardin was President.

(7GB) ONEY GENTRY[4] (David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. in Va. in 1767, moved to Madison Co., Ky., in 1786, and m. there in 1788 David Martin, brother to William Martin, her sister Winnie's husband. David Martin's first wife was Sallie Turner, of whom we know nothing further. He was accidentally killed (See 7HM Harris-Martin) and left only one child by second marriage.

Oney Martin m. 2nd, July 25, 1793, William Blythe, b. in N. C. in 1755, d. in Madison Co., Ky., in 1800. There is some doubt as to the date of birth of Oney Gentry. If she were born in 1767 as stated above, she was 26 years old at the time of her marriage to William Blythe, and he was 38 years old. In his war record, her date of birth is given as 1760. Taking the date of the birth of her last child, Winnie Cain, in 1808, seems to favor the date of her birth as 1767 over that of 1760. She could not have been born between the dates named, because one of her brothers was born in 1761, another in 1763 and her only sister was born in 1765. In 1802, she married John Cain (See 1CR, Cain-Robertson) by whom she had three children. They emigrated to Howard Co., Mo., where she died June 2, 1823.

A sketch of the forbears of William Blythe is found in "The Archives of N. C. Society of the Cincinnati," followed by his war record: "William Blythe was in Edenton, Chowan Co., N. C. in 1742. He married Sarah Osborne and died on his plantation near Table Rock, Greenville District, S. C. He was a brother of Joseph Blythe, Surgeon 4th N. Carolina Continental Line, who married Elizabeth Alston, a sister of William Alston, Governor of S. Carolina, and who died without issue."

William Blythe and Sarah (Osborne) Blythe had eleven children, viz: (i)William, m. Oney (Gentry) Martin; (ii) James, d. in Madison Co., Ky., un m; (iii) John; (iv) Thomas, d. in S. C. without issue; (v) Daniel; (vi) David, d. in S. C. leaving issue; (vii) Jonathan, d. in the western part of N. C. His son William m. Nancy Fields, a one-fourth Cherokee Indian; (viii) Sally; (ix) Absolom, d. in S. Carolina without issue; (x) Esther, m. Reuben Tally. Thomas Blythe (iv above) was a member of Capt. Isaac Bledsoe's Co. 1777 Tennessee Militia in the Revolutionary War. (See "The King's Mountain Men" by K. K. White, p. 104).

The following letter from the National Society of the S. A. R., Washington, D. C., gives William Blythe's war record:

"8 July, 1931.

"Dear Sir:

"As the subject-matter of your letter of July 2nd comes within my 'jurisdiction', the same has been referred to me for reply.

"Since early spelling depended largely upon 'sound' rather than upon orthographic regulations, it happened that William 'Blythe' and William 'Blyes' could have been variant forms of the same name.

"William Blythe ('Blyes') was born in N. C. about 1755; died in Madison County, Ky., in July, 1800; married (1793) Oney Gentry Martin (born 1760, died 1823). He served as a three years' soldier in the Virginia Line (Rev. War).

"In a 'List of Revolutionary Soldiers of Virginia,' published in 1911-1912, by H. J. Eckenrode, on page 50, is the reference to his (Blythe's) Bounty Warrant, copy of which (in possession of the Va. State Librarian, at Richmond, Va.) reads as follows:

"I do certify that William Blyes, Souldier in the 10th Virginia Regiment, enlisted 19 Dec. 1776 for the term of three years, which time he faithfully served and was Discharged. Given under my hand this 10th day of October, 1783."

(Signed) " 'Nathaniel Terry,
" 'Capt. in 10th Va. Reg't.'
"Very truly yours,
"Francis B. Culver,
"Reg'r General."

William Blythe's Will.

"In the name of God amen, I, William Blythe of the County of Madison, and State of Kentucky, being the abundance mercies and goodness of God, of a sound perfect understanding and mind, do constitute this my last will and testament and desire it to be read by all as such. My body I commit to earth from whence it came, my soul to the blessed Redeemer who gave it, hoping and trusting He will receive it unto his angelic hosts and as for what little of this worldly goods He has been pleased to bless me with, first the charge of being decently buried, then all my just debts to be paid, then I do leave to my blessed wife Oney the plantation on which she now lives during her natural life and also the cattle, sheep and hogs and diamond ware and gold to be converted to the use of the family, as long as my Executors shall think she conducts in a prudent manner or until my son James comes of age, and also leave negro boy named Jim, with the tools of all kind to work the plantation for the support of the family, and stock, and one negro girl named Beck, I do give to my son James to be hired out by my Executors till he comes of age, and also one brown mare and colt, and one old sorrel horse to be sold by my Executors and the money left on interest until he comes of age, and when he comes of age and receives Beck and her increase with the hire of her and the price of the three horses left him; then when it shall be pleased that God shall call my beloved wife away from this world, the plantation and the negro boy named Jim, and what of the stock shall be left from the support of the family, to be equally divided between my son James Blythe and my step son David Martin, the household furniture of all kind to be left to my wife during widowhood or life; at her marriage or decease to be equally divided between my two boys, and if my stepson David Martin shall not arrive at to the years one and twenty, his portion appointed for him shall fall to my son James.

"I do make and constitute Robert Rodes and Jacob Patton my sole Executors of this my last will and testament.

"Witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 18th day of July 1795.

Wm. Blythe. S. S.

N. B. There is ten pounds left in the hands of Wm. John Reed to satisfy some little debts thats against me, and there is sixteen pounds on Davis White's estate which I was security for in his life time and had to pay, which altogether with whats in Wm. Reed's hands will clear me of all debts against me, which I wish to be converted to that use and let each portion stand as they are allotted in this will, and as for what interest I may have in South Carolina and in Cumberland I leave to my brother James Blythe to collect all debts, release and secure all property of mine at each place.

Given under my hand, this the 19th day of July, 1795.

Wm. Blythe, S. S.

Witness present
John Cloyd,
Thomas Cloyd.

At a court held for Madison County, on Monday the 4th day of August, 1800, this will was proved to be the last will and testament of William Blythe, by the oath of John Cloyd, a witness thereto, and ordered to be recorded.

Attest: Will Irvine, C. M. C."

The following letter received from the Veterans Administration, Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C., gives the war record of James Blythe:

"You are advised that it appears from the papers in the War of 1812 pension claim, S. C. 19573, that James Blythe enlisted at Richmond, Madison County, Kentucky, and served from August 25, 1813, until November 8, 1813, as sergeant in Captain J. C. McWilliams' Company of Kentucky Militia. This company was in Battle of the Thames. See Battle of the Thames, by Bennett H. Young.

"He was allowed pension on his application executed August 8, 1872, at which time he was seventy-eight years of age. He was then living on Silver Creek, Madison County, Kentucky, and his post office was Richmond, Kentucky.

DOVEY (BLYTHE) ANDERSON

"He married, date not given, Jane White. He stated in 1872 that she was then dead. There are no further data relative to this soldier's family."

SIXTH GENERATION

(9GB) LUCY ANN FRANCES BLYTHE[6] (James,[5] Oney,[4] David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. Dec. 20, 1837, d. Jan. 11, 1916, m. Sept. 27, 1866, at "Blythewood," Madison Co., Ky., William Elliott Simms, b. Jan. 2, 1822, in Harrison Co., Ky., d. June 25, 1898, was the son of William Marmaduke and Julia (Shropshire) Simms. He received the LLB. degree from Transylvania University, and was a member of the Kentucky bar. He was a captain in the Mexican War, was a member of the Thirty-fourth Congress, became a Lieut.-Col. in the Confederate Army and was a Confederate Senator from Kentucky.

Children (Simms)—born at "Mt. Airy," Paris, Ky.:

i. Lucy Blythe, b. Jan. 3, 1868, unmarried.

11GB ii. William Erskine, b. Aug. 1, 1869; m. Lucy Fullerton Alexander.

iii. Edward Francis, b. Mar. 6, 1871, Yale Grad., 1891; m. Mrs. Lilly (Ware) Blair, no issue.

(10GB) DOVEY BLYTHE[6] (James,[5] Oney,[4] David,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. Feb. 15, 1846, d. Jan. 4, 1914, m. June 18, 1867, at "Blythewood," Madison Co., Ky., Col. Joseph Caldwell Anderson, son of Col. Oliver and Mary (Campbell) Anderson, b. Jan. 1, 1830, in Jessamine Co., Ky., on the pre-emption made by his grandfather, Capt. William Anderson, in 1779. He was educated in private schools, at Princeton University and graduated from Transylvania University with a LLB. degree in 1849. He was licensed to practice law by Chief Justice Marshall, and located first, at Lexington, Ky., then at Lexington, Mo., and finally at Ft. Scott, Kan. He was elected to the Kansas legislature and took a leading part in the political affairs of the state, then verging on civil war. Anderson Co., Kansas, was named in his honor.

In 1859 he returned to Lexington, Mo., and in 1861 he joined Gen. Price's forces in the capture of that city. However, soon after that event, he was captured by the Union forces, and sent to Gratiot street prison, St. Louis. A few months later he was paroled, and in 1862 he entered the Secret Service of the Confederate Government. For further sketch of his colorful life see Tyler's Quarterly Historical and Genealogical Magazine, July 1929, p. 66. He died May 2, 1891, on his estate "Glengarry," Lexington, Ky.

We close this chapter with the following tribute by Capt. Anderson to his native state's World War dead, expressing beautiful sentiments that entrance us all:

Kentucky's Dead in Glory Live.

"Gone back to God. What tomb could hide
The martyr souls, the sacrified?
For us, that light forever dwell,
For home, met Fate mid hideous hell

On land, in air, on waters wide,
Where rolled the Teutons awful tide;
That Christian nations might abide
In love and peace—on duty fell—
Gone back to God.
"O mother mine, thy heart has sighed
In memory's shrine thy tear has dried;
From starlit-land where anthems swell
An angel soldier's clear notes tell
Of love and peace—thy son who died
Gone back to God."

CHAPTER IV

CAIN-ROBERTSON FAMILIES.

(1CR) JOHN CAIN was born near "The Shallow Ford," Surry County, North Carolina, in 1770. His mother's maiden name was Celia Steelman and his father's given name is not definitely known. In the North Carolina census of 1790, only two families of Steelmans are listed in Surry County, John and Charles. John's children were two sons and two daughters, Charles' children were two sons and three daughters; which makes the last named fit into our picture very nicely (see Robertson manuscript), with Celia as one of the three daughters. The same census report also shows that there was only one Cain family in Surry County. The head of that family was Thomas, and he listed his children as two sons "under sixteen years of age," and four "free white females including heads of families." Thomas was the father of John who was then twenty years old and probably away from home at the time of the census, for he was a great hunter. The two sons listed were probably George and another brother. We infer that George was much younger than John, because George's children were about twenty years younger than John's first set. (Robertson Manuscript). The girls probably married or died before their mother left North Carolina. As further evidence that Thomas Cain was John's father is the fact that John named his first son "Thomas."

Ellen Conner found in the Teachers College Library at Kirksville, Missouri, an old paper that stated that John Cain, at the age of twenty-two married in North Carolina, Ruth Blythe, and two years later moved to Kentucky where she died. The paper contained so many inaccuracies that it could not be considered authentic. However, there was a large family of Blythes in Surry County, North Carolina, at the time mentioned, and we know that John Cain had a daughter "Ruth" by his last marriage which his children called "his second marriage."

At any rate, John and George Cain and their mother moved to Kentucky (date uncertain), and there in Madison County in 1802 at the age of thirty-two, John married Mrs. Oney (Gentry) (Martin) Blythe. She was thirty-five years old at that time, had been married twice before and had four children, of which the eldest, David Martin, was thirteen and the youngest, Sally Blythe, was five years old. John Cain and his wife Oney had one son, Thomas, who died when one year of age, and two daughters, Winnie and Celia.

When Sally Blythe married John Cross in 1817, a large company of which John Cain, wife and two daughters, George Cain and mother, John Cross and wife, David Martin and wife, were a part, emigrated to Howard County, Missouri.

As Howard County, Missouri, is a pivotal point for much of our history, a few statements gleaned from Switzler's "History of Missouri," and other Missouri publications may set at rest some points, disputed, or not well understood.

About 1800, Daniel Boone came to Missouri from his home on the Ohio River near Charleston, Virginia (now West Virginia), and settled on a grant of land of about eight hundred acres given him by Gov. Delassus, and accepted the office of "Syndic" from the Spanish Government. He officiated in the territory alloted to him with signal success till the government changed hands. His grant was on the Femme Osage, twenty-five miles west of St. Charles, and adjoining grants occupied by his sons who had come to this territory about 1796. This was his home till he died in 1820 at the age of eighty-six. His wife died in 1813.

In 1807, Nathan Boone and Daniel N. Boone, sons of old Daniel Boone, with several companions, went from their home on the Femme Osage up the Missouri River in canoes with a salt making outfit, and stopped in Howard County at the salt springs of which they had heard. They spent the summer there making salt which in the fall they took down the river in their canoes. After this, the salt springs were called Boones' Lick and the country around it, comprising territory afterwards made into thirty-one counties, about one-third of them south of the river, was known as the "Boones' Lick Country."

"In the spring of 1808, Colonel Benjamin Cooper and family, consisting of wife and five sons, moved to the neighborhood of Boones' Lick, in Howard County." (Switzler's History.) The Governor sent him an order to move to some place better protected from the Indians. "He thereupon abandoned his settlements and located at Loutre Island (opposite Warren Co.), where he remained till 1810. In February of that year, he and family, with many others, chiefly from Madison County, Kentucky, left Loutre Island for the Boones' Lick Country." (Switzler's History).

It took these people more than two months, to select a route, to find suitable fording places to cross the numerous streams, and cut a road through the wilderness, through Warren, Montgomery, Callaway, and Boone Counties, and on to Boones' Lick where they made the first permanent settlement in Howard County in 1810. This road was ever afterwards known as "Cooper's Trail," and was used by all subsequent migrations to counties west of St. Charles.

Reuben Estes Gentry, an older brother of Gen. Dick Gentry (both of them nephews of Oney Gentry Cain) was one of the party of about 150 families that made the "Cooper's Trail," and came to Howard County in 1810.

Tradition says that the Cains came from Kentucky to Howard County with Col. Richard Gentry and family. "The Gentry Family in America," p. 94, says that Richard Gentry and family came to Howard County in 1817. This Richard Gentry was later "Gen. Dick" Gentry, who was killed in the Florida War in 1837.

Quoting from Switzler again: "The years 1817 and 1818 witnessed a great influx of population to the Boones' Lick Country, as all Central Missouri was then familiarly called. Those early settlers were mainly from Kentucky, principally Madison County, Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina."

Stories that the Cains came to Howard County earlier than 1817, are evidently in error, as Indian troubles prevented migrations from 1812 till 1816, and a clause in the will of her second husband provided that Oney Blythe should have the Blythe farm "during her natural life," so she must have stayed on this farm till her Blythe children became of age, which was about 1817, when Sally, the youngest, married (See 7GB-Gentry-Blythe Ancestry).

John Cain was a hunter by profession, and probably, had spent several seasons in the Chariton Bottoms and around "Buffalo Springs," later Randolph Springs, previous to 1817. Traditions from different sources, claim that he and Daniel Boone were intimate friends, and that they were frequently companions on hunting trips. Daniel Boone lived in St. Charles County, but, no doubt, kept in touch with his Kentucky friends, so it would have been an easy matter for John Cain to have arranged to go with Boone on some of his many hunting and trapping expeditions up the Missouri River. There is no evidence that Boone ever lived in Howard County (see Switzler's History), but he hunted and trapped in most of this territory along the Missouri River through Missouri and Kansas.

When John Cain emigrated from Kentucky in 1817, he took his family direct to Buffalo Springs and settled there, while John Cross, David Martin, and many others of their company settled near the present town of Roanoke, fifteen miles south. Silver Creek, a beautiful stream, about midway between the two places above named, was no doubt named for "Silver Creek," Madison County, Kentucky, whence many of these families had come. Capt. James Blythe Anderson (see 12GB, Gentry-Blythe Ancestry) who was born on the banks of Silver Creek, Madison County, Kentucky, and spent twelve years of his life there, thus writes of his early reminiscences:

"Dear Silver Creek, fantastic fairies skip Across thy dimples; weeping willows drip
Their dewey fringe along thy limpid breast;
The wind comes wheeling o'er thy cedared crest,
With crimson streams of day in rivalship.

The drowsy lolling May-flies loitering, sip
With bees the buds, that o'er thy margin dip,
Like bubble beads, in dancing beauty drest,
Dear Silver Creek!

So long ago, and far away, yet slip
Sweet memories where thy lapping pebbles trip
The bruised toes a-dallying with thy guest;
O happy days! no longing not unrest;
Bright memory bears thy ripples to my lip,
Dear Silver Creek!"

After a few years, the lands around Buffalo Springs and along Silver Creek were found to have defective titles, and so, rather than try to meet the expense of clearing the titles, many of the settlers left their lands, sacrificing their improvements, which were largely measured by the labor required to build cabins without a nail, to build rail fences with rails split nearby, grub out timber and clear off little patches of land, on which to raise corn for hominy and gritted meal, and fodder for the horse. This work was largely done by groups, neighbors working together, and when the work to be done was quite heavy, it was the occasion for a large gathering and a joyous time, first the work, then a banquet, then athletic sports. The women prepared a sumptuous meal and delighted in serving a menu of wild meat—"bar," "venzin," squirrel, possum and turkey, with a relish of lye hominy, honey and hoe-cakes—no changing of plates and no dress coats. What a man ate was measured by capacity, not vitamins. Cows gave milk from three to five months of the year, and the flow depended mostly upon the amount of feed accessible on the out-range. Water came from the spring, somewhere under half a mile away, and always up hill with the heavy load. Slaves could beat the whites "toting" water; they would place a pail on the head, ease down and catch a pail in each hand, and trudge off singing like larks. Whites could not do it; I've tried it. Housekeeping was not much of a job—just push the dirt over a little and it would fall into the cracks between the puncheons; or if the cabin had no floor, the job was easier. The author's grandfather would take pay for his blacksmith work in animal pelts, or in chopping wood for his coal pits which he burned periodically for charcoal for his shop work, or "I will see you later."

In 1822, John Cross bought a farm four miles south of Roanoke on which he reared his family, and spent the rest of his days, and John Cain, in the same year, bought a farm seven miles east of the Cross farm, known in later years as the Cain-Robertson farm. (See Howard County Records). On this farm, John Cain and family lived many years, and his wife Oney died there June 2, 1823, and was buried in the family graveyard on the farm. In 1826 John Cain married Emily Hill of Randolph County, and their first child, Bartheba, was born in 1827 on the Cain-Robertson homestead. In 1828, John Cain's daughter, Celia, married Washington Conner (See 3C.)

John Cain left the Howard County farm in 1829 or 1830. He may have spent one year in Macon County, at any rate he moved to what was afterwards Adair County, in 1830 and took up lands on the Chariton River seven miles west of Kirksville.

In July, 1829, a band of Sac and Fox Indians came down the Chariton River from Iowa and came in contact with cattle that the whites were grazing on the Chariton bottoms. They infuriated the whites by driving off a number of these cattle. The owners of the cattle rushed to the settlements, and gathered up a company of some twenty-five men and went to the camp of the Indians, and asked them to restore the cattle and leave the country, as in a recent treaty the Indians had relinquished all territory south of the Iowa line. The Indians claimed that they still had the right to hunt and fish along the river. A white saw an Indian raising his gun, and shot him. The fight was over in a few minutes, but the whites fled, leaving four dead and wounded in the hands of the Indians. Great excitement prevailed in the settlements, and several hundred men were mustered in the nearby counties and rushed by Gov. Miller's orders to the scenes of the conflict. They scoured the country to the Iowa line but never found an Indian. These men soon went to their homes, and may have built the old fort in the disputed territory. History is not clear on this point. Another rumor of an Indian invasion brought out a regiment under the command of Gen. John B. Clark of Howard County, in 1832. One story is that he built a fort in the western part of Adair County. John Cain was in one of these expeditions, perhaps with Clark. John Cain's lands finally included the old fort where the soil was rich and the location inviting. Here John Cain lived and reared a second family, and here he died in 1853 at the age of 83 years.

The following excerpts are from the reminiscences of John (Uncle Jack) Cross (No. 12, Mo. Crosses) published in the Huntsville, Missouri, Herald, July 28, 1899.

"Along about the first of the century John Cain came to Missouri with a colony of explorers with old Daniel Boone at the head. After prospecting over Howard and Randolph (Randolph then a part of Howard) counties and adjacent territory for a few years, he returned to Kentucky, and in 1815 returned to Missouri and first settled near Buffalo or Salt Lick, now Randolph Springs; but being so far from any settlement, he moved farther south and settled on a tract of land two miles south of Roanoke near where other pioneers had settled. It may be disputed, but my grandfather, John Cain, and Daniel Boone were the first white men that ever laid eyes on Buffalo Lick. That was between the years 1800 and 1814. Cain was with Boone most of the time on the exploring expedition, as stated above, and by going direct there in 1815 with his family, would indicate that he had been there before.

"John Cain was my step-grandfather, and was a great hunter. He followed the game as the country became more thickly settled. Some few years before the Black Hawk War he built a cabin on the Chariton River and followed hunting. There were a great many Indians in this country at that time, and they were friendly at first, but when the settlers began shooting too much game to suit them they went on the war-path.

"When hostilities opened, John Cain enlisted under General John B. Clark who had charge of the state troops in that section. In our neighborhood, or colony as it was then called, they got together and took a vote to see who should stay at home with the women and children, and who should go to the front and fight the Indians. My father was one that was voted to stay at home to run his shop, and to look after his neighbor's families as well. John Cain was in the Indian fight under General Clark, on a creek about fifteen miles northwest of Kirksville. After this fight it was named Battle Creek. Several were killed on both sides. Captain Bramble of Howard County was killed in this battle. After this fight General Clark built a fort four miles west of Kirksville. It was built in diamond shape out of White Oak logs. The logs were split, one end was sharpened or pointed like a picket and the other end was put in the ground about three feet. Block houses were built at each corner of the fort, with port holes to shoot through.

"General Clark's men used flint-lock rifles, and the Indians used bow and arrows and some rifles in the fight on the creek. In after years grandfather bought a large tract of land there—five hundred acres including this fort. I was there on a visit to grandfather when I was fifteen years old. His son now owns the lands. Indian Town was about fifteen miles south of Clark's Fort. The town was situated on a high knoll and the surrounding country was the most beautiful I ever saw, that I remember. I think this was about 1840. I stood in Indian Town and could see droves of deer grazing on the lower lands around about. I thought it was the loveliest country I ever beheld. I visited grandfather several times at Clark's Fort. He died there at an advanced age. After his death I visited his son. It has been about twenty-two years now since I was there last. At that time the young Cain sent word to General Clark by me that 'Clark's Fort was still Democratic.' The next time I saw the General I delivered the message and he laughed heartily."

From James H. Robertson, Jr., of Flagstaff, Arizona, we have received two manuscripts, left by his father, dealing with his Cain-Robertson ancestry, from which we take the liberty of quoting extensively.

"The Cain Family.

"Ony Cain, wife of John Cain, was first, Ony Gentry, daughter of David Gentry, of Madison Co., Ky., Silver Creek. She married, first, Martin, about the year 1788. They had one child, David Gentry Martin, born May 14, 1789. Martin was killed at a house raising. Then she married ——— Bly, by whom she had three children, James, born May 14, 1794, Polly, born March 23, 1796, married and died without issue, Sally, born Dec. 17, 1797, married John Cross (ten children), died in Howard County, Mo., about 1875, Bly died in Kentucky. Ony Gentry Bly then married John Cain. Their child, Winifred Cain (Robertson), born in Madison Co., Ky., Nov. 27, 1805, had six Robertson children, died Sept. 10, 1845. Celia Cain was born Aug. 27, 1808, married Washington Conner, died, raising four or five Conner children. John Cain and Ony Cain had one boy. Thomas, born July 31, 1803, died Nov. 17, 1804.

"John Cain and his family moved to Howard Co., Mo., from Madison Co., Ky., in 1814 or 1815. Ony, his wife, died June 2, 1823, and is buried in the Philip Robertson grave yard.

"Reuben Estes Gentry had come to Howard Co., Mo., about 1810. Dick Gentry came out, I think, with the Cains and that party in 1814-15.

"Celia Cain, John Cain's mother, died in Howard Co., Mo., Sept. 8, 1827, aged 80 years, and is buried by Ony Cain, her daughter-in-law. She was a Steelman, and was raised on the Yadkin River, North Carolina, Yatkin or Surry County, coming to Madison Co. in an an early day, and from there, with John and George, her sons, to Howard Co., Mo., about 1814-1815.

"John Cain's second wife was Emily Hill of Randolph County, Missouri. They moved from Howard County to Adair County seven miles west of Kirksville where he raised another family and died. John Cain's brother George came to Missouri with him at an early day."

"Philip Robertson."

"Philip Robertson was born Oct. 25, 1802, in Orange County, Virginia. Winifred Cain, his wife, was born in Madison County, Kentucky, Nov. 27, 1805. They married July 18, 1833, and the first named died March 7, 1863, in Howard County, Missouri, and the second named died Sept. 10, 1845."

Robertson's notations from the old Winnie Cain Bible, shows that George Cain, brother of John Cain, married Elizabeth ——— and three of their children are listed in that Bible as follows:

"Celia Cain, daughter of George Cain and Elizabeth, his wife, was born the 19th day of Nov., 1820.

Samuel W. Cain, son of George Cain and Elizabeth, his wife, was born the 30th day of Dec., 1822.

John Cain, son of George Cain and Elizabeth, his wife, was born the 18th day of July, 1825."

Nancy Hersely, born in Virginia Jan. 27, 1775, died at the Robertson home July 7, 1861, and was buried in the family graveyard. She came from Virginia with the Robertsons, had been married two times, and cared for the Robertson children after the death of their mother in 1845.

A paper handed to us by Dr. W. J. Conner was written in 1909 by James H. Robertson, Sr. and contains much of the same information, and several dates of births which are incorporated in this record. In it, it is said, according to the family tradition, that a battle was fought at Shallow Ford, North Carolina, during the Revolution between the forces of General Greene and Lord Cornwallis, and that the Steelmans, father and son, fought with Greene's men while the mother and Celia, and other girls carried water and provisions for the patriot soldiers during the fight and moulded bullets for several days before the battle.

It also contains this important statement:

"The two old ladies, Celia and Ony Cain died in the northern part of Howard County, Missouri, and they were buried in the graveyard side by side. A small rock marks their graves, and a black oak tree stands near the head, or did when I was there last in 1898.

"James H. Robertson."

The two old ladies referred to, were John Cain's mother and his wife. Celia Cain was eighty and Ony fifty-six at the time of their deaths.

The author visited the old Cain-Robertson graveyard referred to above, in 1929, and knowing that his great-grandmother, Ony Cain, was buried somewhere in that graveyard, found two graves as described above, of which the one on the south side was evidently the last one made; if so, it is the grave of Ony (Gentry) (Martin) (Blythe) Cain, for Celia Cain died several years before Ony died. It is to be hoped that the great-grandchildren and the great-great-grandchildren of these "two old ladies," in the near future, will see that their graves are properly marked with enduring monuments.

Children (Cain)—first three born in Ky.; others born in Howard and Adair Co., Mo.:

xiv. Melissa Pernesa, m. in 1866, James William Jones, son of William Asa Jones and Elizabeth Carpenter of Sullivan Co., Mo., children, b. at Greencastle, Mo.:
  (a) Genevra May, b. Oct. 18, 1867; m. Dec. 27, 1889, Fernando Wood Cain (4CR), b. May 15, 1864, children: Hazel Honor, b. at Novinger, Mo., Oct. 2, 1890, m. Sumner Crawford, lives at Greencastle, Mo.; Miriam Bell, b. at Novinger, Mo., Mar. 23, 1900, m. Arthur Broyles, lives at Des Moines, Iowa.
  (b) Minnie Bartheba, b. Feb. 26, 1869, m. W. Frank Runkle, lives in Seattle, Wash.
  (c) William Asa, b. Oct. 17, 1871, m. twice, one child, lives at Hurdland, Mo.

xv. Philip R., b. Dec. 1, 1851; m. Dec. 23, 1872, Emma Eugenia Lemons, b. Nov. 20, 1855, both Osteopaths, formerly lived in Hannibal, Mo., children:
  (a) Alvah Lee, d. young.
  (b) Lillie May, d.
  (c) Asa Delbert, received degree from A. S. O. in 1900, m. Eva Buchanan, lives in Junction City, Mich., had five children: Albert Francis, d.; Virginia Ruth; Infant, d.; Robert, and Richard.
  (d) Ina, d.
  (e) Gertrude, d.; m. Murry Farrell, had one child, Lenora Lee, d.

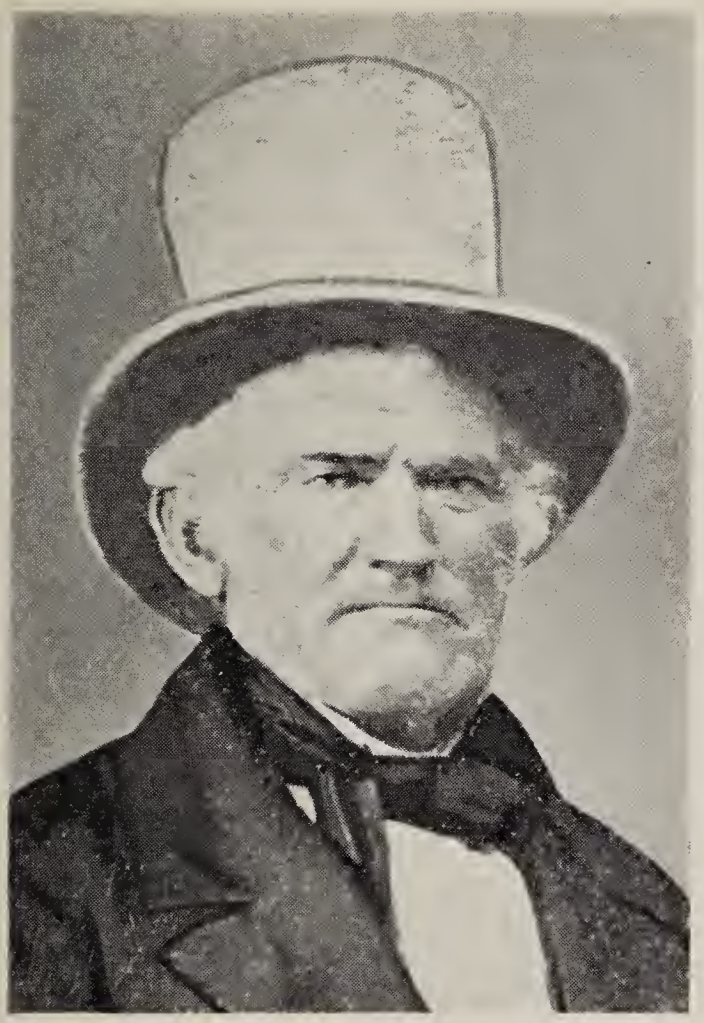
After John Cain's death in 1857, George W. Cain and David A. Ely administered the estate with the widow, Emily Cain. The Adair County records at Kirksville, Mo., contain many receipts signed by the heirs. George W. Cain was guardian and curator for Philip R., William C., and Melissa P. Cain, evidently minors.

SECOND GENERATION

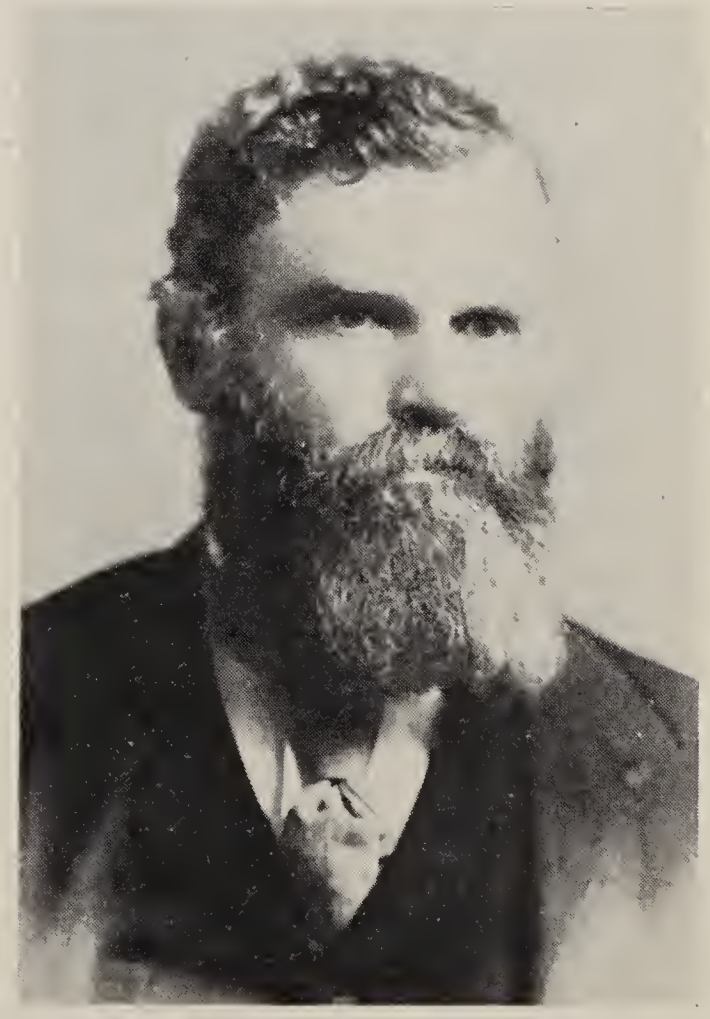
(2CR) WINIFRED CAIN[2] (John[1]), b. in Madison Co., Ky., Nov. 27, 1805, d. Sept. 10, 1845; m. July 18, 1833, Philip Robertson, b. in Orange Co., Va., Oct. 25, 1802, d. in eastern part of Howard Co., Mar. 7, 1863. Of the family of Philip Robertson we know but little. He had a brother, Hiram Robertson, who lived near him and reared a family of several children, one of whom, Jeff, was well known by the author. Another one, Philip A. Robertson, corresponded with the author from his home at Fowler, Colo., in 1931. Philip Robertson was thirty-one years old when he married, and Winnie Cain was twenty-seven. In the same year they married, he bought the John Cain farm (See Howard Co. Records), and lived there till his death.

Children (Robertson)—born in eastern Howard Co.:

i. John W., b. July 22, 1834, d. in Ashley Co., Ark., Oct. 18, 1881, at age of 47, not married.
ii. Joseph W., b. Mar. 2, 1836, d. May 3, 1839.
5CR iii. James Hiram, b. Feb. 15, 1838; m. Alta May Parker.
iv. Nancy D., b. Mar. 11, 1840, d. May 27, 1899, at Aspen, Colo., buried in the Cain-Robertson graveyard; m. May 16, 1889, John Lindsey.



PHILIP ROBERTSON



JAMES HIRAM ROBERTSON, SR.

v. Sally Louise, b. May 5, 1842; m. Aug. 8, 1891, B. W. Malone. She d. in K. C., about 1906.
vi. Frances C., b. May 3, 1844; m. in 1894, G. W. Lea, a farmer living northwest of Huntsville, Randolph County, Mo., where he had reared his family of children by a former marriage. At this Lea homestead, Fanny (Robertson) Lea, enfeebled by hardening of the arteries, fell and hurt her hip. Suffering from the injury and from the disease she passed away six weeks later, Sept. 14, 1917, and was buried in the nearby cemetery of Fort Henry.

(3CR) BARTHEBA (BASH) CAIN[2] (John[1]), b. Jan. 27, 1827, near Fayette, Howard Co., Mo., moved with her parents to Adair Co. in 1830; m. Jan. 9, 1848, Asa King Collett, b. in Ky. Nov. 7, 1821; went from Ky. to Howard Co., Mo., then to Adair. Soon after he married, he served as a soldier in the Mexican War, went to Calif. in 1849 and stayed until 1861, when he returned to his wife in Adair Co. She died Nov. 23, 1897; he died Apr. 8, 1898.

Children (Collett)—born in Adair Co., Mo.:

i. Ira, b. Feb. 12, 1862; m. July 2, 1889, Emma Grim, b. Oct. 27, 1863, had three children:
  (a) Hubert Lee, b. Mar. 30, 1890, children Ira Lee, b. Aug. 17, 1919; Elsie Joan, b. Feb. 25, 1926; and Hubert Gordon, b. Sept. 6, 1928.

George W. Cain lived continuously for more than 86 years at the old Cain homestead seven miles west of Kirksville, Mo. He was a highly honored citizen of the county and took an active part in its affairs until a few years before his death.

The "History of Adair County," published in 1911 by E. M. Violette, Professor of History in the Kirksville Teachers College, contains a reminiscent article written by Mr. Cain in which he gives a vivid picture of pioneer life in Adair County. From this article we give the following excerpts:

"My father was a native of North Carolina, where he was born in 1770. In his early manhood, he emigrated to Kentucky and became a warm personal friend, and intimate associate of Daniel Boone. When that celebrated hunter and Indian fighter came to Missouri in the early part of the century, my father came with him and settled in Howard County. In about 1828, he made a trip with some others, to this section, but did not stay here. Two years later, in 1830, he brought his family to what is now Adair County, settled here and entered land, a part of which I now own. He lived here till his death in 1853, and at that time owned 840 acres, all in one body.

"He was twice married, his first (second) wife being Emily Hill, a cousin of the late Senator David B. Hill. I was a child of his second wife, and was born on the farm where I now live, six miles west of Kirksville, in 1833. I claim the distinction of being the first white child born in the region of what is now known as Adair County. Although there are other claimants for this honor, I believe that I have fully established my claims, to the unbiased and disinterested.

"In 1837, Col. Jesse Jones came here from Macon County, bringing a lot of cattle, hogs, and negro slaves.

"I well remember that trouble Wash Conner had in getting a letter which had been sent here to him by his brother. At that time, the postage was paid by the man getting the letter, when he received it. There was a letter there for Wash, and the postage was ten cents. He had hundreds of hides and leather, but no money. And Mr. Withrow, (the P. M.) would not give him his letter without the money. He came to my father to borrow the amount, but he was in the same condition, for there was no money in the country, our trade being altogether by barter. He then went to Col. Jones, but he had no money. Finally it was found that "Nigger Jim", one of Col. Jones' slaves had just ten cents. Wash borrowed the money from him and got his letter.

"Our food consisted of wild game, honey, maple syrup and corn bread. There were no mills of any kind for the grinding of corn. It was ground either in a 'mortar,' or on a 'gritter'. The 'mortar' was a hollowed out stump of a sycamore log, fixed by burning coals in it. The corn was poured into this and beat up with an iron wedge, fastened on the end of a stick. The 'gritter' was a piece of tin, punched full of holes, like a nutmeg grater, and fastened to a board. The ear of corn was pushed back and forth over this, and the meal was thus ground. This could only be done after the corn had been soaked, or when it was comparatively green. Bee trees were in abundance, and plenty of maple trees to tap for syrup. There was no lack of meat, for wild game was more than plentiful, bear, deer, some buffalo, wild turkeys, pheasants, quails, prairie chickens and pigeons were in abundance.

"I was at least ten years old before I saw any wheat. Our first flour was also beaten, and I well remember the first biscuits I ever tasted, made from this flour. I did not like it much, for I wasn't used to that kind of stuff.

"I am nearing the end of a long journey; my faithful and beloved companion has already 'gone home' and this will be the last time I shall do anything of this sort; so I desire herewith to bid all Godspeed, and wish them success and happiness."

(9CR) JAMES HIRAM ROBERTSON, JR.[4] (James Hiram,[3] Winifred, [2] John[1]), b. Sept. 2, 1890, m. Aug. 8, 1921, at Liverpool, Eng., Lily Park. He was in the World War and when asked for a story of his experiences, modestly replied, "As for my war experience, it was a long and hard one, and as the war is over, let us forget it. We were married in Liverpool, England, but it was two years after I was discharged from military service, and was in business at Flagstaff at the time. I made the trip for the occasion and brought my bride to my home town, where she is very much liked by all who know her, and I am very proud of her and my two little boys."

Mr. Robertson is owner of a small ranch in Oak Creek Canyon, twenty miles from Flagstaff, and is also proprietor of "The Call of the Canon Resort," snuggled in the rugged mountains there amid the most beautiful scenery imaginable.

JAMES CAIN, OF PUTNAM COUNTY, MISSOURI

In the preparation of this story of John Cain's family, another family headed by James Cain appears, who seem to have been closely related to John Cain. This James Cain moved with his family, from Putnam County to Adair County, and his children were called cousins by John Cain's children, but we can find no one who knows how the relationship came about. There is a tradition (see 1CR) that tells us that John Cain, at the age of 22, married Ruth Blythe in N. C., moved with her to Ky., where she died. When John Cain married Oney Gentry in Ky., he was 32 years old. He may have had a child when he married Oney Gentry, but no mention is made of it anywhere.

This James Cain married Annie Ketchens, and they had a son, James W. Cain, who married in Adair County in 1848, and went to Calif. in 1849, leaving his wife, Lucinda (Rice) Cain, who stayed, first, with Bartheba (Cain) Collett, whose husband, A. K. (King) Collett, also went to Calif. in the same company with James Cain. Later, Lucinda stayed with her brother, John Rice.

This company was on the road six months, and arrived at Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 1, 1849, "much fatigued with the dust, rough roads and hard sleeping." One year later, Oct. 1, 1850, James W. Cain, after nine days' sickness, died in Sacramento. On the way, and while there, he wrote many letters to his wife and other friends in Adair County. These letters portray a magnanimous spirit, a deep religious attitude, and an intense desire to reach home alive and be with friends again. They were written to his wife, Lucinda, his parents, Washington Conner and his brother-in-law, John Rice. There is also a letter from Mathias Cain to his wife Elizabeth, telling of his brother James' sickness and death.

A few quotations from James Cain's letters follow. They were fastened with sealing wax, without envelopes, and addressed to Mrs. Lucinda Cain, Kirksville, Mo.

> "Lucinda, my dear wife—you write that you are afraid that I see a great deal of trouble—but there is nothing that troubles me as much as being away from home, and especially being away from you all, though there is enough to trouble the heart of the righteous. . . .
>
> "Tell father if he will let Jackson come and stay with you and Basheba that King and I will give him fifty dollars when we return home from California if God will spare our lives to come home again. . . .
> "Tell mother that I rejoiced when I heard that she had joined the church, for religion is all that is worth living for in this world." . . .

His wife, Lucinda, writes him that she is living with her brother, John Rice, where she expects to stay until he comes home. Then James Cain writes a long letter dated Sept., 1850, to John Rice, thanking him for his great kindness to his sister Lucinda. He also speaks of his child and other matters.

In a letter to his parents in June, 1850, he says:

"I think that I can come home this fall or winter and be very well paid for my trouble a crossing the Plain, but I shall never get paid for leaving home. I think that if no accident happens to me, I can bring home with me five thousand dollars in gold."

He worked in the mines awhile, but most of the time, owned and operated a ferry boat at Sacramento. His brother, Mathias, writes pathetically of his sickness and death. His tongue from the first was so swollen he could hardly talk, and just a few minutes before he died, Mathias helped him to stand on the floor awhile.

Mathias soon came home and became administrator of his brother's estate which was probated in the Oct. 1851 term of court; but his administering was not satisfactory as old county records at Kirksville show. The records show that Lucinda Cain files resignation of her right as administrator in favor of George Rice.

In the letters, James W. Cain speaks familiarly of Jackson, as though he were one of the family. The only "Jackson" in the Cain families that we can find any trace of, was Jackson Hill Cain, son of John Cain.

"Jackson," a brother to Basheba, was then in his teens and may have been working for, and staying with, James Cain, father of James W. Cain. At any rate, Basheba and Lucinda did not live together long, for in the following September we find Lucinda and her child Delcena, living with her brother, John Rice.

The Philemon Conner Family.

SARAH MCLONIE CONNER
(SALLIE M. CONNER)

FOREWORD

Since I was a little girl of ten summers, I have been intensely interested in the history of the Conner family. I used to ply my grandfather, Washington Conner, with many questions about our part of the history of the Irish race. He told me that his father, my great-grandfather, Philemon Conner, was born in Ireland and that Philemon's father was an Irish weaver, and that the name of our ancestors in Ireland was O'Connor or O'Conner, for as he spoke the word, I could not tell which spelling he meant.

Mrs. Mary Eller (Conner) Linder, (See 14C) granddaughter of Philemon, the only living representative of the third generation, says, "I think the right name was O'Connor but Daddy (Washington Conner) left Kentucky when he was fourteen and when he got here (Missouri) he always signed it 'Conner.' "

Whether Philemon spelled his name 'Connor' or 'Conner' is a mooted question. All of Philemon's children spelled the name 'Conner.'

However, among the effects of Washington Conner at the time of his death, was found a very old Bible containing the family record of Philemon and all of his children—in which the family name was spelled C O N N O R. My authority for the way in which the name was spelled in the record contained in this old Bible is Mrs. Laura M. (Conner) Draper, (26C)—great-granddaughter of Philemon who was in possession of this Bible at the time it was destroyed by fire. Mrs. Draper states that she remembers distinctly that the family name was spelled in this Bible "C O N N O R."

Who wrote the record in this Bible or when it was written we do not know. Neither do we know who originally possessed the Bible, Philemon or Washington. This record was written in ink and well preserved and was found in the central part of the book. It contained the name of "Philemon Connor and Surroh McLonie, his wife," dates of their birth, and marriage, names of their children and dates when each was born. All through the name was written "C O N N O R." Whether this writing of the Connor family name in the old Bible was an error in spelling or whether it was the way Philemon, and his immediate ancestors spelled it, the reader must judge for himself.

"O'Connor" is an ancient Irish name, which apparently originated about 1020 as indicated in the following quotations:

From "Irish Pedigrees," by John O'Hart—Vol. I, p. 633.

"O'Connor—Kings of Connaught.

"Arms: Ar. an oak tree eradicated ppr.

"BRIAN, the eldest brother of NIALL MOR, (OF the PRINCES of TYRONE pedigree) was the first King of CONNAUGHT, of the Hy-Niall Sept, and ancestor of O'Conchobhair of Connaught; anglicized O'Connor, O'Conor, Connor, Conor and Conyers."

From "History of Ireland and Her People" by Fitzgerald,

"Irish surnames—Surnames were partially adopted by various tribes as early as the 9th and 10th Centuries, but hereditary and permanent surnames were not established until the 11th and 12th Centuries."

Page 567:

"Connaught, the smallest, least populous and most Westernly of the five provinces of Ireland— . . . . During the Irish Pentarchy, Connaught was ruled by the O'Connors.

Page 844:

"For the sake of distinction, by request of the King Brian Boru, family designations were chosen—the son of the Monarch, Prince or Chief prefixing 'Mac,' meaning 'son of', while the grandsons and more remote kinsmen took 'Ui', now written 'O' meaning 'descendant of.' "

We first hear of Philemon Connor at or near Harrodsburg, Mercer County, Kentucky, where he married and his children were born.

My sister, Mrs. Laura M. Draper, began a collection of notes and manuscripts for the Conner record, about 1900. In 1903, I began a record in the Bible of my father and mother, David Lewis Conner, and Ann Elizabeth Conner, and with their help, I have added to it during the last twenty-eight years. I had long wished to have these notes printed in the form of a genealogy.

In 1930, I came in touch with a far removed cousin, Mr. J. Newton Cross, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, who was compiling a genealogy of the Cross-Gentry-Cain-Blythe families, and as his work already included the Conners, he suggested that I undertake to give a complete history and genealogy of the Conner family.

I consented to do this, and am greatly indebted to Mr. Cross for his help and for the standard of truth and accuracy which he has endeavored to maintain throughout. I bespeak for him a high appreciation of his efforts by all readers of this work.

For myself, I have been amply rewarded by the new acquaintances that I have made, by the interest in family relationships that I have helped to bring about, and by the sympathies and comforting words of many dear friends.

SARAH McLONIE (Sallie M.) CONNER.

THE CONNER FAMILY

A search in the County Clerk's office at Harrodsburg, Mercer County, Kentucky, and also in the County Clerk's office of Lincoln County, Kentucky, from which Mercer was formed, fails to show any record (deed or marriage certificate) in which the name of Philemon Conner or Philemon Connor appears.

A letter from the "Bureau of Pensions," Washington, D. C., shows that a Revolutionary soldier, Philemon Conner, was born in Orange County, Virginia, June 29, 1763, and was the son of John Conner. He enlisted from Orange County, and served as a private two months each at several different times in 1779-80-81, two of these times as a substitute for his father, and he served in an Indian campaign, after he moved to Kentucky. After the war, he moved with his father and step-mother, to Washington County, Virginia, then to Lincoln County, Kentucky, then to Mercer County, and later to Fayette and Scott Counties, Kentucky. In 1795, he moved to Boone County, Kentucky, then in 1829, he moved to Fayette County, Indiana. He drew a pension on Claim "S.17364."

From the fact that this Philemon Conner was living in Mercer County, Kentucky, when our Philemon Conner came there from Ireland in 1790, and because they had the same rare given name, we conclude that they were related, and considering their ages they must have been first cousins.

FIRST GENERATION

(1C) PHILEMON CONNER, or PHILEMON CONNOR (see Foreword), was born in Ireland, Sept. 16, 1771, came to the United States in 1790, lived at or near Harrodsburg, Kentucky, where he died Sept. 6, 1827. He married Jan. 8, 1801, Sarah McLonie, who was born March 11, 1782. She and her minor living children emigrated to Howard County, Missouri, about 1830; later, with some of her children, she moved to Adair County, Mo., in about 1840, and died there Sept. 1, 1861. She was buried in the old Collett cemetery west of Kirksville.

(3C) WASHINGTON CONNER[2] (Philemon[1]), b. Dec. 7, 1806, near Harrodsburg, Ky., emigrated to Howard Co., Mo., in 1821, d. July 8, 1890; m. Feb. 28, 1828, Celia Cain, b. in Madison Co., Ky., Aug. 27, 1808, (see Robertson manuscript, Part V, Chap. IV). They moved from Howard to Adair Co. about 1838, where she died Aug. 26, 1841, and was buried in the old Collett cemetery west of Kirksville. About sixty years after her death, a monument was erected over her grave by her son, David Lewis Conner, and the children of another son, James Frederick Conner, bearing the inscription: "Celia Cain, wife of Washington Conner, born May 1, 1810, died Aug. 26, 1841." (We cannot account for this discrepancy in the dates of birth of Celia Cain).

Washington Conner was a true pioneer and contributed much in a substantial and helpful way, to build up his community. A few excerpts from a "Memoriam" prepared by a committee of the

(MRS. WASHINGTON CONNER)

Masonic Lodge to which he belonged, are given below. These show something of his attainments and high standing.

Brethren of the Masonic Fraternity: again we are called upon to mourn the loss of one of our number.

"Brother Washington Conner, on the 7th of July passed to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler has returned. He has, by the order of the Grand Master of the Universe, been called up higher to receive his wages and enter the Grand Lodge above.

"Bro. Conner was one of the oldest citizens of Adair Co. He was here before Kirksville was a town, when the whoop of the Indian was heard on the vast prairie, and in the dense forest, when neighbors were few and far between.

"He was the soul of Good Fellowship. The latchstring to his door was always on the outside; hundreds have sat at his board and enjoyed his bounty. He was a zealous worker in the cause of his Master, and always ready to go where duty called. His hand was ever ready to administer to the wants of suffering humanity, wherever they might be found.

"He had passed the time allotted to man, having gone beyond the fourscore mark, reaching the ripe age of 84 years, tottering and feeble in body, but his mind still vigorous. Bro. Conner was one of the oldest, if not the oldest Mason in the county. He was a charter member of Kirksville Lodge, No. 128, which was organized the 24th day of May, 1850, and was its first Senior Deacon. He was also a charter member of Kirksville Lodge, No. 105, of which he was a member at the time of his death. . . .

"How we miss him, especially those of us who knew him best. A few will long remember the last visit he made to the Lodge. At the close of the meeting, he was called upon to make some remarks. Rising feebly, he said, 'I will sing you a song.' Stepping into the middle of the room, he sang in a clear, but faltering voice, one of the old songs. It mellowed every heart, and brought the tears to many an eye.

"But he is gone: he has passed as a shadow, away, and a familiar face has been withdrawn; we will no more hear his voice in our Councils. While we drop a tear over his grave, and remember his many virtues, let us remember that we too, are mortal, that the place that now knows us, will soon know us no more forever."

Washington Conner moved to the Adair County territory about 1838, no doubt at the instance of his father-in-law, John Cain, who went there in 1830, eleven years before the county was organized. For many years he operated a grist mill, and a saw mill, and kept a general store seven miles northwest of Kirksville. He also established a tan yard there. It is related that his oldest son, David Lewis, in his early manhood, was his father's able assistant in these operations.

Washington Conner married, 2nd, Mar. 23, 1846, Mrs. Martha Wells (Jones) Kimbrough, relict of the late J. J. Kimbrough. (See excursus, Jones-Kimbrough.)

(7C) MARY MARGARET VAUGHAN[3] (Catherine,[2] Philemon[1]), married Jan. 29, 1849, Dr. Andrew Taylor Still, who was born in Virginia in 1829. They lived on a farm in Macon County, Dr. Still teaching a part of the time at a wage sometimes as low as $15 a month. In 1853 they moved to Shawnee Mission, forty miles west of Kansas City, where they again lived on a farm, but he spent much of his time helping his father, who was a physician and a Methodist minister, treat his Indian patients for different ailments. By such experience and by reading medicine with his father, he became a doctor. He took part in the early political struggles in Kansas, and for two years was a surgeon in a Kansas regiment. After the war he spent one year in the Medical College at Kansas City, Missouri. His inquisitive turn of mind led him to dig up Indian skeletons and study them. He invented a mower and a churn. The churn he peddled with some success. His wife died Sept. 29 1859, leaving three young children. In November, 1860, he married Mary Turner, with whom he lived more than fifty years. In 1864, two of his first three children and an adopted child, died of spinal meningitis. The other one, Jerusha, married John W. Cowgill of Ottawa, Kansas, and had children: (a) Margaret, dec'd; (b) Josephine; (c) Henry and (d) Ralph, both Osteopathic physicians.

In 1874, Dr. Still formulated his ideas and experiences into a system to which in his public announcement he gave the name "Osteopathy." After meeting great opposition, traveling from place to place through Kansas and Missouri, for thirteen years, practicing his new theories with indifferent success, and suffering much distress of body and mind, he located at Kirksville, Mo. There, in 1892, he founded "The American School of Osteopathy" (A. S. O.). This school was started with only two teachers in charge, whose teaching and demonstration work was all confined to a one-room building. This enterprise met with great success and led to the establishing of many other schools of like character, until soon Osteopathy was known all over the United States.

The issue of Dr. Still's second marriage was five children, four of whom became well known in business and professional life: (a) Charles E.; (b) Harry S.; (c) Herman; (d) Fred, died in early manhood; (e) Blanche, married Dr. George M. Laughlin, later president and founder of the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery. Dr. Still died in Kirksville in 1917 in his eighty-ninth year.

24C vi. James William, b. Feb. 14, 1864; m. Mary Madden.

(9C) DAVID LEWIS CONNER[3] (Washington,[2] Philemon)[1], b. Oct. 26, 1834, in Howard Co., Mo., moved with his parents to Adair Co., Mo., about 1840, helped his father operate a general store, tanyard, grist mill; lived a few years in Sullivan Co., Mo.; spent his last years in Kirksville, Mo., where he died Oct. 6, 1910; buried in Bear Creek Cemetery.

His life was an open book, full of good deeds. In 1864 and 1865, he and his brothers, Jesse, James, John T., and others from Kirksville, made trips across the plains with ox teams and covered wagons; hauling freight from Atchison, Kansas, to Denver and Salt Lake City; living mostly upon buffalo meat; braving Indian dangers, and fording bridgeless rivers.

On Apil 19, 1858, he married his step-sister, Ann Elizabeth Kimbrough, born in Randolph Co., June 8, 1840, died in Kirksville, Mo., Sept. 13, 1928; buried by the side of her husband. For fifty-three years, congenial, thrifty, with lofty ideals and high ambitions for themselves and children, they traveled the pathway of life, transmitting to their nine wholesome sons and daughters, a heritage of true worth and noble character. All of their children were born on the farm in Adair County, and all were living in 1931, except the first born who died Nov. 18, 1922, in her sixty-fourth year.

At their home in Kirksville, in 1908, they celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary. All of their children were present, bringing tokens of love, making the occasion a happy day for their parents. Six of these children, three sons and three daughters, fitted themselves for the practice of Osteopathy, in which line of work they have achieved remarkable success. After many years' service as Osteopathic physicians and surgeons, five of them still cleave to their chosen profession.

The next week after Mr. Conner's death, the "'Weekly Graphic" of Kirksville, printed a long article from which we take the following extracts:

"There was born to this union nine children, three sons and six daughters, all of whom are living. . . . Much to the delight and satisfaction of the father and mother, all of these were able to come home a few weeks ago, and enjoy a family reunion. The father, who was then confined to his bed, was greatly cheered and improved with the pleasure of having all his children with him again.

"The deceased united with the Baptist church at Bear Creek about 1850, and was a consistent Christian until the day of his death, and died trusting in Jesus Christ as his Saviour.

"He was made a Mason in Dec. of 1864, and was a beloved brother, much esteemed for his cordiality and friendly spirit by the members of that order, a large number of whom were present at his funeral.

"As a man, Mr. Conner enjoyed a most enviable reputation for honesty, integrity of purpose and life, and consistent dealing with his fellowmen. He was a kind neighbor, an accommodating and genial friend; a model husband and father, exceedingly tender in all the relations of life which he sustained to others.

"The services at the grave, consisted of the beautiful and impressive ritual of the Masonic Order, which was unusually well rendered, in the presence of a great throng of people.

Of Mrs. D. L. Conner, the Kirksville "Daily Express," Sept. 13, 1928, said: "Mrs. Ann E. Conner, one of the oldest citizens of Kirksville, passed away today at her home, 816 S. Sixth St., at the age of 88 years. Mrs. Conner was a woman of splendid character, and a loving and devoted mother. She was well known in Adair County and the surrounding vicinity, and leaves a wide circle of friends who will join in extending sincere sympathy to the family in its bereavement."

Inscriptions on monument at Bear Creek Cemetery read "Conner, David L., 1834-1910; Ann E., 1840-1928."

EXPLANATORY:—

In 1930, the author who, for many years, had been compiling a history of the Cross family, in hunting up related families, got in touch with the Conners and Cains, none of whom he had ever met, although reared less than seventy-five miles apart. The Conners had saved up much material for a family genealogy and suggested that it be printed with the Cross history. So, Dr. Sarah McLonie Conner (30C) volunteered to collect the data, and she it is, who has made the Conner history possible. She is responsible for all the dates of births, marriages, deaths, and stories of events and incidents in the lives of the members of the Conner and related families, which she has patiently gathered, from what she deems reliable sources. In this contribution, she has made a noble gift in the interests of the younger generations of the Conner family. The author is responsible only, for the arrangement of the material, and for the comments.

The following pages are added for the recording of family data through the coming years. This will be a valuable heirloom to your family and a boon to some future historian. In giving the data be sure to give dates of births, marriages and death and place of same. Name the connection with person listed in this work and state page on which the ancestor may be found.
